County Traffic Claims Second Life in 2 Days

POLICE PROBE ACCIDENT THAT KILLED MAN, 81

John J. Guise Dies of Injuries Suffered When Walking Along Highway.

4TH FATALITY OF YEAR

3 Injured In Accident Here Involving Stolen Auto; Driver Captured.

An investigation of the traffic accident on Lexington avenue Sunday night which resulted in the death 18 hours later of John J. Guise, 81, Mansfield, was promised today by Police Chief Meade K Bates.

Mr. Guise, who was Richland county's fourth traffic victim of the year, died at 3.20 p. m. yesterday at General hospital without regaining consciousness. He suffered a compound fracture of his right leg and head and body injuries. His death was the second from traffic injuries in the county in two days.

The aged man was struck by a car driven by Richard Beer, 21, of R. D. 5, Mansfield, as he walked along route 42 near his home at the southern corporation limits of the city. Beer has not been held in connection with the fatal mishap.

Corp. Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol said Beer, who was driving north, apparently was passing another car when the rear fender of his machine struck the aged pedestrian, who was walking on the west side of the highway.

In an attempt to avoid hitting Mr. Guise, Beer drove his auto into the side of another operated by L. F. Hamilton, 30, of Lima, Radcliffe said. Both cars were slightly damaged.

Lexington Native

Born in Lexington in 1856, Mr. Guise for many years was a fireman for the Pennsylvania railroad. He retired several years ago and had been making his home with a son, Harry Guise, on Lexington avenue. He was a member of the First Lutheran church.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Paul Bender and Mrs. L. J. Smith, both of Cleveland, three sons, Charles of Cleveland; Rev. William Guise, of Toledo, and Harry, with whom he lived in Mansfield, and three grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 2 p m. Wednesday with Rev. Grover E. Swoyer pastor of the First Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Hapsburg Family Falls In Austrian Arrest Wave

Held In Plot

Held at Newark, N. J., in $25,000 bail on charges of extortion, Stanley Jasosky, 19, is said to have confessed to attempting to "chisel" $30,000 ransom out of the father of the kidnaped Peter Levine. He asserted he knew who committed the crime and that the Levine boy was dead, but G-men said that Jasosky's arrest did not solve the kidnaping.

'HEAT WAVE' TO END TOMORROW

Mercury at 79 at 1 P. M., All-Time High, But Showers, Colder Are Forecast.

This is going to be bad news after the record temperatures of the past two days, but colder weather, much colder, is due to reach Ohio by tomorrow night, the weather bureau predicted today.

Summer temperatures, which set a new high for March 22 at 79 degrees at 1 p. m. today, will be chased by colder weather Wednesday and any hopes that summer had arrived will be vanquished by tomorrow night, the forecast said. Showers are due to arrive tonight and to continue over Wednesday.

Yesterday's high of 73 degrees was topped by six degrees at 1 p. m today, Observer Otto Sprunger reported. The reading of 79 was 15 degrees above the previous high for this date which was set in 1928 and equalled three years ago.

The mercury dropped only to 55 degrees a summer level, last night, and the average for the past 24 hours was 65, nearly 23 degrees above normal.

It was so warm that frogs sounded their spring harmonies from streams and ponds, and even topcoats were left at home.

The mercury touched 80 degrees early this afternoon in Cleveland for an all-time high for March 22. Forecaster Ralph Mize said the temperature would fall to 40 degrees by tomorrow night.

VIENNA—Duke Maxmilian and Duke Ernest of Hohenberg, sons of the assassinated Archduke Francis Ferdinand, whose death led to the World war, were arrested today.

Both dukes are prominent in the monarchist movement. Other members of the Hapsburg family were not arrested.

Other monarchists who were arrested included Prince Wilhelm, one of the foremost noblemen in Germany and Austria. He has large estates and castles in both countries.

Fate Up to Hitler.

Authorities believed that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler would decide the fate of Prince Wilhelm. He was quartered in a police station cell with three other monarchists. His wife was permitted to bring him food.

The latest list of those arrested included the chief of the leftist semi-military organizations, Gen. Theodor Koerner and Maj. Alexander Eifler, formerly of the army, and the former socialists leaders of Vienna, ex-Mayor Karl Seitz and ex-Chancellor Karl Renne.

Police officials, meanwhile, ordered everyone in Austria to turn over to the authorities all firearms such as machine guns, rifles, pistols, hand grenades and munitions by Friday. Possession of such articles after that time will result in severe penalties for the owners.

Newly inaugurated Nazi authorities decided to give non-Nazis various posts in lesser divisions of the Austrian government in a campaign to win over Austrian friends before the national plebiscite on April 10.

Posts Divided.

Attempting to gain popular support, authorities first moved to give Austrians the benefit of the reich social program by dividing posts equally between Nazis and

PASS $540,000

Tax Payments Near 100 Per Cent—Collection Ends.

Boosted by $36,069 in tax receipts yesterday, the final day of collection, Richland county's first-half real estate tax receipts passed the $540,000 mark today and may aproach a 100 per cent collection, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said.

Kolb's desk was piled high today with mail returns, which have not been figured in the total, and more checks by mail were expected this afternoon.

"It may be several days before we know how much we collected in the payment period, but the collection looks good, considering business conditions," Kolb asserted. The half-year charge is approximately $600,000.

With only ten days left in which to list personal property and pay levies, receipts today amounted to $29,858. Property owners owe more than $100,000 in personal levies which must be paid by April 1 to avoid penalty.

Cleared In Husband's Murder, Girl-Mother Sees Babies Again

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Wan, girlish Mrs Patricia Ryan was acquitted early today of the killing of her patrolman husband, Michael J. Ryan, and returned, a free but broken woman, to the side of her two babies for whom she wept in the long, dramatic weeks of her trial.

A sigh swept over the packed court room as the jury of nine men and three women returned with the verdict at 12:50 o'clock this morning after five hours and 54 minutes of deliberation.

A few minutes later, the 21-year-old mother half fell into a chair in an ante room, with the frenzied scream that she still loved the man she killed.

"Oh, Mike! Mike!" she cried, "I love you"

She rose from the chair and threw herself into the arms of the matron, Mrs. Maud Curley, as a child would seek the protection of a mother.

"My babies!" she sobbed. Tears ran down her cheeks. "Take me to my babies!"

Her father, Patrick Boland, placed an arm comfortably about her frail shoulders.

"There, there," he soothed. "I've come to take my baby home."

Boland then took her to their home where she was re-united with her children, Michael, barely three, and Patricia, one.

"I'm glad you've come home from the hospital, mummy," little Michael said sleepily as she took him in her arms.

Mrs. Ryan tried to smile, but tears dripped down her cheeks and on to her son's face.

Die on Gallows Warning Youth to Shun All Crime

Two Former O. S. R. Inmates and Ex-Convict Hanged In West Virginia as Pastor's Kidnapers.

Two former Mansfield reformatory inmates and an ex-convict went to their deaths on the gallows in West Virginia last night, all expecting to go to "glory" and leaving behind them a plea to the youth of the nation to avoid the pitfalls of crime.

The two former Mansfield inmates were Orville Adkins and John Travis, 25, The ex-convict was Arnett Booth, 46.

Booth made a futile last-minute effort yesterday to save his youthful companions, convicted with him in the kidnaping of Dr. James I. Seder, a retired minister, last November. He appealed to Governor Homer Holt, asserting that he had been solely to blame for the crime and had induced Adkins and Travis to participate in the kidnaping while they were drunk. The governor declined to act, and all three went to their deaths on the gallows of the state prison at Moundsville.

It was West Virginia's first triple execution in 14 years, and the first in its history under the Lindbergh kidnaping law.

Die Together.

Adkins and Travis went to the gallows together.

While guards adjusted straps on Adkins' arms and legs and a crowd of 74 men and one woman watched, something went wrong.

There was a report like a shot and Adkins fell from behind the curtained platform through the

TWINS, 4TH SET, NO SURPRISE

Easterner Guesses Correctly As He Hurries To Hospital.

LYNNFIELD, Mass —(AP)—Six years ago, when a maternity nurse said "twins" to Terrence Gibbons, he was unprepared and showed it.

Last night, when another nurse emerged from his wife's hospital room, Gibbons beat her to it. "Twins?" he said. The nurse nodded.

It was an easy guess for Gibbons: the new arrivals were the fourth set of twins born to his 31-year-old wife, Evelyn, in six years. The boy and girl born last night brought the Gibbons' family to nine. Only their first-born, now a boy of seven, was not a twin.

TEANECK, N. J.—(INS)—Badly bitten by four of her pet German boxer dogs, Mrs. Clementine Gruen, 41, was in the hospital here today in serious condition. The teeth of one dog had torn away part of her face and she suffered other bites on her legs and arms.

STILL ASKING

Duffy to Call on State Board For Parole Inquiry Funds.

Still seeking funds to continue his investigation into parole conditions in Ohio, Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy was expected today to ask the state board of control to vote him $20,000, dispatches from Columbus said today.

Duffy's action followed the recessing, after a one-day session, of the Franklin county special grand jury yesterday. Inquiries both in Franklin county and by a grand jury now in recess here have been delayed by the lack of funds. Yesterday the Franklin jury asked the control board for funds, and was refused. It then suggested that Duffy make the request.

The future of the Richland county grand jury, now in recess, depends on whether funds are made available.

Leland S. Dougan, former chairman of the state parole board, testified before the grand jury for a short time yesterday. He signed a waiver of immunity, Duffy said. Dougan said he had been waiting eight months to "tell my side of the story."

A. W. Robertson, Westinghouse Head, Says Decks Cleared, Stock, Products Used Up.

WHEN?—THAT'S QUESTION

Chairman Here for Meeting With 100 Other Leading Officials of Company.

A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, in Mansfield today with other company officials, thinks the time is ripe for the nation to start climbing out of the present recession, but he isn't sure when it will start climbing.

Taking time out from an inspection tour of the Mansfield plant of the company, Robertson told a News-Journal representative that the decks had been cleared for an upswing because manufacturers have used up their stocks of raw materials and their reserve supply of products, and that replenishing them would increase payrolls and employment. But he said there was no way of telling when that activity on the part of industry would start.

Sees Opportunity.

Turning to another field, Robertson asserted that electrical and engineering fields today offered opportunity for developments quite as startling as those of the pioneers of the electrical industry—Edison, Westinghouse, Steinmetz and others.

"It would be foolish to say that there aren't the opportunities for creative work in electricity today that there were 25 years ago," he said. "Engineers today are doing even greater work, and just as revolutionary in its effects as those early pioneers in the industry.

"Take for instance, the new lethal lamp, the work of two Westinghouse engineers It was announced to the scientific world only a few weeks ago. While we cannot say so definitely right now, it may be as revolutionary as was the first electrical refrigeration.

Kills Germs by Rays.

"It is a process of sterilization by radiation, killing germs and all forms of bacteria with ultraviolet rays. It may be that the names of Rentschler and James, engineers who worked patiently on this lamp for five years, will be as important to the industry as any of the first trail-blazers in electrical research."

The new lamp can be applied to water, food, dishes, glasses—any object or matter that may be impregnated with germs Medical scientists believe it will be ef-

Reilly Charges He Was Illegally Sent To Hospital For Insane.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y.—(AP)—Edward J. Reilly, once chief counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptman, electrocuted Lindbergh baby kidnaper, today asked a Suffolk county jury to free him from the Kings county hospital for the insane.

Reilly was committed more than a year ago on the application of his mother, Mrs. Helen Reilly. He contends he was committed illegally and is sane.

Opposing his habeas corpus writ, Dr. Charles Parker, superintendent of the hospital, testified through Francis X. Wazeter, assistant attorney general, that Reilly was "mentally sick."

TRIMS SCHOOL FUNDS $14,600

Board Approves Appropriation of $680,000 to Operate System This Year.

The Mansfield board of education last night approved an appropriation measure calling for the expenditure of $680,760 for operating the city's schools and retiring bonds in 1938. The total is $14,641 less than last year's figures.

The general fund appropriation of $558,617 is $6,651 less than in 1937. For bond retirement and interest during the year, the board appropriated $122,143 as compared with $130,132 in 1937.

Expressing doubt that available income during the year will meet the demands of the appropriation,

ROOSEVELT TO MOVE SWIFTLY IN TVA FIGHT

Congressional Investigation Is Expected as Chairman Still Defies President.

WANTS OTHERS REMOVED

Bridges Says He'll Demand Ouster For Rest of Board If Morgan's 'Fired.'

BULLETIN

YELLOW SPRINGS —(AP) — Arthur E. Morgan said today he would refuse flatly to meet President Roosevelt's request that he give "any reason" why he should not be removed as chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Presidential removal or suspension of Arthur E. Morgan as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority became a virtual certainty today, despite the veteran engineer's challenge of the legality of such action.

After Morgan refused yesterday to resign or retract charges of dishonesty against his co-directors, President Roosevelt gave him until 2:30 p m. today to present "any reason" why he should not be ousted.

Leaves for Home.

The TVA head, however, left last night for his home at Yellow Springs, O., without communicating further with the president.

Mrs. Roosevelt gave no advance indication of how he would proceed against Morgan. There was speculation on Capitol Hill that he might issue an executive order removing the chairman and then nominate his successor at once.

Such a course, observers pointed out, would force the senate to decide whether to support the ouster by confirming or rejecting the successor.

Some legislators expressed the belief Mr. Roosevelt might suspend Morgan until a congressional committee could inquire thoroughly into the feud among the TVA directors. Then the senate and house could decide whether to remove the chairman.

"I think the sentiment of congress is in favor of an investigation," said Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader.

Barkley declared that under the constitution the president has the power to remove the TVA head, appointed by Mrs. Roosevelt five years ago.

Morgan's supporters, however, have contended the TVA act provides that only congress can remove any of the directors.

Wants Others Removed.

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) a TVA critic, said that if Morgan were forced out, he would introduce a resolution to remove Direc-

Abandon All Hope For Lost Airliner, Search Called Off

Abandoning all hope that any trace of the missing TWA airliner on which two Mansfielders were passengers would be found before summer, officials of the company announced today that the search for the plane had been called off.

Although a few residents of the mountainous central California area in which the plane is believed to have come down on the night of March 1, were still plodding through deep snows, airline officials said they did not believe any trace of the plane would be found until summer, when the snow will be gone.

The two Mansfielders on the plane were J. Tracy and Mary Lou Dirlam, who were flying to Mansfield to be with their father, Jay N. Dirlam, who died without knowing that his two children were on the ill-fated plane.

His widow left Mansfield for California immediately after the funeral, and still clings to the hope that the plane may have landed safely, and that her children are still alive.

TWA officials, however, have withdrawn all airplanes from the search, believing that all nine persons aboard the plane had met their deaths.

Two Widows Seek Male Companions

By VIRGINIA LEE

Two widows around 40 wrote the unusual letter which I am using for today's column. They are pals, both brunets, have good personalities, dress well.

One has two grown children; one has a part time job, the other is out of work. The one who has the children has been going with a man who is separated from his wife for years, but won't get a divorce and says he wouldn't marry the best woman who ever came down the street. The other has no boy friend, although she meets a good many people. She isn't interested in those she meets, and doesn't meet anyone she can like.

The widow who has a man friend hasn't had very good luck with her beau. He failed to keep a date he had with her, came around drunk, and recently has not been to see her. She misses him, she says, and she loves him dearly as he used to be good to her. He has no steady job, but has a trade. This woman believes that maybe it is her fault that the man is no longer attentive. He has been seen with another woman but she doesn't take that seriously. At any rate, these two women call themselves "TWO LONESOME PALS" and want my advice.

Men Not Free.

Of course at your time of life, my dears, there are not nearly as many free men to pay attention to you as when you were girls. But even so, no woman ever lived who felt she was too old to have a "boy friend," and that life was less interesting when she didn't.

Really, I don't think much of the man one of you has been going with. You couldn't marry him unless he decided to get a divorce, and he doesn't seem particularly desirable even as a companion. He must have changed his mind about marrying again, as you say at one time he talked of getting the divorce and marrying. I am sorry to say that I think he probably has met another woman whom he wants to run around with, so I wouldn't write or call him. I'd just leave him alone.

And so to the one who doesn't meet the right kind of men, well, that may be your fault because, like many a younger woman, you feel uncertain when with them and don't make the effort to get to know them. Generally speaking, when we don't care for people it is because we don't know them very well.

DON'T INTERFERE

When your opponents have terrifically misbid a hand and are about to wind up with a contract in the worst suit they could pick, don't interfere. Let them stay in trouble. A double will only scare them out of a suit you like into one they will like. (Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a rubber game and the North-South pair did some fancy bidding that landed them in a disastrous contract. North started off with 1-Heart, East passed, South bid 1-Spade, West passed and North jumped to 3-Hearts. South rebid his spades at the three level and North called 4-Clubs. East doubled this, and South decided to pass this up to North for his decision. North now decided to show his void in diamonds with a bid of four, and South being unable to read North's holdings, decided that his fit in that suit, his lack of heart support and North's failure to support spades, to let the contract stay there.

West, who was delighted with this contract, cagily passed, figuring that if he doubled North would go back to his hearts. There was nothing North could do about it at that point. South, of course, should have realized that North with two heart bids was not afraid of that suit, and have taken the contract to 4 Hearts.

If lilac bushes are to be used for a low hedge, they should be trimmed like privet and not allowed to bloom. Two cuttings a year will not be too many.

Glorified Vaudeville.

While "Goldwyn Follies" doesn't follow the pattern of coherent movie stories, and resembles rather a series of vaudeville acts, the talent in it is good entertainment. It is headlined with star dust from the stage, radio, opera and pictures, and each does his or her stunt in an enjoyable manner. The story is pretty negligible, but serves to hold the various acts together. Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy holds the place of honor by right of popularity. Helen Jepson's screen debut is interesting in view of the fact that she opens the Metropolitan season in Cleveland this year; The Ritz Brothers, Bobby Clark, Phil Baker, Ella Logan provide comedy, and Kenny Baker adds romancing with Andrea Leeds to his worth while singing. Zorina, the ballet danseuse and Adolphe Menjou round out the cast of this Ohio theater feature.

The Little Caesar of the movies, Edward G. Robinson, continues at the Madison through Wednesday in his first really funny comedy, "A Slight Case of Murder." Mr. Robinson plays Marco, the beer baron with as much enjoyment as the audience finds in watching him climb the social ladder. He is a gangster who doesn't drink his own commodity, and so never finds out how bad it is. A New Deal for the public is in store when he tastes it by mistake. An hilarious killing is a high light of the picture, with dead gangsters as common as teeth on a dentist's floor. There is romance too, between Jane Bryan, as Robinson's daughter, and a son of an aristocratic family who gets a job as a cop just to prove he can stick to one job.

Mistaken Identity.

A case of mistaken identity in which a hungry, cold and penniless ex-actor is taken for the lost son of a wealthy publisher, is the theme around which "Midnight Intruder" revolves. The picture is one of two opening at the Majestic today for three days. Barbara Reed, Sheila Bromley, Eric Linden, Louis Hayward and J. C. Nugent are featured players. A murder mystery draws together the intruder and the daughter of the man suspected. The second feature is the epical "Charge of The Light Brigade," picturing the heroic battle scenes at Balaclave of which poets have written. It is a dramatic episode in the history of the British army and nation. Errol Flynn and Olivia De Havilland are starred.

Alcatraz Pictured.

Although there is an interesting human story in "Alcatraz Island," current attraction at the Ritz real interest in the picture lies in the scenes which portray life in the formidable and escape-proof prison that lies on an island in San Francisco bay, and which is one of Uncle Sam's most feared prisons. Customs and routine life at the prison are said to be authentically portrayed in this film. Mary Maguire, Ann Sheridan, John Litel, and Gordon Oliver have major roles. Comedy relief to this sombre drama is found in "Double Wedding" in which Myrna Loy and William Powell return as a team to their legions of movie followers. An excellent supporting cast aids in working out a comedy that is slap-stick at times.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

MARY'S SUGGESTION was made for my benefit alone. I knew that and I knew also that she was young and healthy enough to enjoy a "time for ourselves," even if her heart was still sore at her separation from her young husband.

But to me the suggestion was anathema. It seemed to me that I could not endure leaving the seclusion of my room and facing the world, especially that part of it which lay between my room and the outer door of the hotel lobby.

Mary's account of her conversation with the old waiter had effectively disposed of the manager's story that the drunken woman, who had called me and asked for Dicky, was in reality a Mrs. Glavan trying to get her husband, also a resident of the hotel. This meant that the manager, at least, and in all probability—by the grapevine method—the lesser employes of the hotel as well, would know that a drunken woman had demanded to talk to my husband last night, and would put the usual interpretation upon the incident.

Must Face It.

I knew that I would feel humiliated, branded, and that every glance in my direction would make me shrink as fearfully as if it were a rifle aimed at my heart.

But I also knew that I must "face the music," and that, sooner or later, I must run the gamut of those curious, and what was more deadly, pitying glances. I might as well get the ordeal over as quickly as possible. My common sense, which I frantically summoned to my rescue, told me that after my first appearance, I and my plight would be an old story to the hotel employes, and that some fresh gossip or scandal would absorb their attention.

It took all the reserve of courage I had, however, to answer Mary's suggestion with an affirmative, which I tried to make as hearty as possible.

"I think that would be a splendid idea, Mary," I said.

"Hooray!" she said, clapping her hands. "That's the stuff. Stick the little chin out as far as it will go, and take whatever comes. Now, then, what would you like to do?"

"I have no choice whatever," I told her hastily, feeling that any choice I might make would turn out later to be the worst possible one. "Please decide for both of us. Whatever you choose will be perfectly all right with me."

Mary Has Program.

"You mean," she countered with a shrewd look at me, "that you don't care a hoot in the hot place what you do. But that's just where I come in. This is going to be good for you, as the headmaster in the preparatory school used to say when he was handing out demerits and extra lines to work off, and I'm the doctor who's going to see that you take the prescribed dose."

She grinned provokingly at me and rushed on.

"So, as long as you're leaving it to me, I prescribe the following schedule."

She sat down in the chair next to mine, and outlined her plan, punctuating each item with the tap of a knuckle of her right hand upon the palm of her left.

"First, a shower, hot, then cold, then a rest, lying down for ten minutes. Then dress in our prettiest combination street and dinner dresses—you know, Auntie Madge, those darling things with the trick little coats.

"Then a window shopping stroll up and down the avenues—there are some of the darlingest new things in—and after that a stop for tea at that real English tea room. Then, when we're ready for dinner, I know a wonderful French place. Then a play—or movie—or what have you—whatever we can scare up on short notice. Then a little after-theater snack and so home and to bed. How does that program strike you?"

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 23.

ALTHOUGH THE solar position might seem to presage a very definite step in the direction of putting affairs on a firm foundation, yet there are signs of difficulty and disturbance to be reckoned with in attaining such desired stability. Sudden disruption threatens, possibly precipitated by bad management, disputes or impulsive acts. By exercising prudence and restraint, there should be gain in sound investments, real possessions or other matters of old standing.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which there will be definite opportunities for stabilizing the affairs, increasing the possessions and putting the fortunes on a sound road toward success. But this advantageous prospect should not be jeopardized by rash and impulsive conduct or bad management of suddenly arising situations.

A child born on this day may have a studious and sound mentality and may attain success. However, a tendency to adventure, change, waywardness and argument may prove its undoing.

Today's Recipes.

DATE PUDDING—Two eggs, one cup sugar, one cup chopped dates, one cup chopped nuts, two tablespoons cold water, two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon baking powder. Beat yolks and whites of eggs separately and put in mixing bowl. Add other ingredients, mix well, pour into well-buttered baking pan (12 inches square) and bake in a slow oven (250 to 300 degrees) for 40 minutes. Serve with whipped cream. This ripens if prepared a day or two before wanted.

Set Good Example.

Children do not come into this world with an instinct for cleanliness. They have to be taught its value, but even before they can understand the why of clean hands and clean bodies and clean clothes they can be taught how to obtain them.

In addition to guidance in making themselves clean, parents have one other great medium of instruction, and take advantage of one of the great traits of childhood. Children are imitative, and parents who make a pleasant example of cleanliness of themselves and the home will find that their children will seldom show an aversion to soap and water.

Drop Cakes.

Two cups sugar, one-half cup butter, two eggs, one teaspoon soda, one cup sour milk, grated rind and juice of one orange, five and one-half cups flour. Mix in usual manner. While cakes are hot, ice with orange icing, made by mixing one package powdered sugar with one tablespoon melted butter and grated rind and juice of one orange.

When sugar gets hard and lumpy, put it in the refrigerator for two or three days and you will find it will become quite soft again.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint.

Macaroni and Cheese
Stewed Tomatoes
Celery and Apple or
Pineapple and Banana Salad
Rhubarb Sponge Pie Coffee

It is a good idea to put a shaker of grated cheese on the table when you are serving a macaroni and cheese dish. Some folk like more cheese than others, and would add a sprinkling of it over their helpings if it was handy. The grated cheese might be a sharper kind of cheese than that you used in the casserole dish.

Today's Recipe.

MACARONI AND CHEESE. — Cook enough macaroni in salted water to generously feed the family. Drain and bleach it by letting some cold water run through it. Drain it again and put in buttered baking dish. In a saucepan melt one tablespoon butter, add one tablespoon flour, mix well, gradually add one cup sweet milk, and boil up until smooth, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper or paprika. When done add from one-half to one cup cheese cut fine or grated, and cook, stirring until cheese is melted. Pour over macaroni, mix thoroughly through it and cover top with cracker or bread crumbs or crumbled corn or wheat flakes. Bake for about 15 minutes or until brown.

RHUBARB SPONGE PIE. — One cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, two tablespoons flour, two eggs, one cup milk, one cup chopped rhubarb. Cream sugar and butter. Add flour and egg yolks and mix thoroughly. Add milk and rhubarb and, lastly, fold in beaten egg whites. Line glass pie dish with pastry, pour in above mixture and bake in 425-degree oven.

Odds and Ends.

One can string beans, cut fine; one can mushroom soup, two slices bacon, cut fine; one cup hamburger, bread crumbs. Place beans in baking dish and add soup. Mix bacon and hamburger and spread over top, strewing bread crumbs over all. Bake half an hour. Serve with baking powder biscuits.

This dish was devised for an unexpected guest recently and has now become the family's favorite luncheon dish.

PARADE WILL BE CITY'S PART IN TERRITORY FETE

Sesqui-Centennial Committee Plans to Depict Scenes of Local History.

Mansfield will observe the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Northwest Territory with a parade May 2, according to tentative plans which had been drafted today by the celebration committee.

The program calls for a parade to be held in connection with the arrival of the ox-team caravan—a counterpart of the original expedition that made the trek into the Northwest territory 150 years ago.

Abandons Original Plans.

The committee abandoned original plans for staging a pageant when the caravan, which is accompanied by a troupe of trained players, arrives in Mansfield—but will arrange instead for numerous floats depicting scenes from local history.

Caravan's players will present a historical pageant in the evening, probably at South Park, near the old blockhouse that figured in the Indian wars of 1787, John Correll, general committee chairman, said.

The ox-team caravan, feature spectacle of the celebration, following the trail of the original expedition, left Massachusetts Dec. 3, and will arrive in Marietta on April 7, and will continue its trek through Ohio and the other four states, which were originally a part of the Northwest territory.

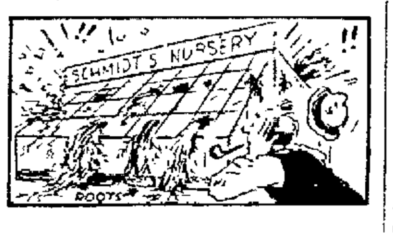
It's Odd

But It's Science.

BUFFALO—(P)—Dioscorides, a young Greek physician, of the first century, A. D., discovered that the seeds of meadow saffron were good for gout

Now, after 19 centuries scientists are learning a lot of other things about that old gout remedy, whose medical name is colchicine.



It appears to do what is not expected, when least expected Thus, colchicine leaped into fame last November with the discovery that, when sprinkled on plants, it would produce new and sturdier species.

Whether it will do this with man's most useful agricultural plants, and whether it will make mules fertile, remains to be seen But meanwhile the surprising drug has displayed another contradiction

The new-species discovery grew out of the fact that biologists had found colchicine useful for slowing down cell division in plants. This was useful for scientists who want to study exactly how a cell divides In nature, the division is too fast for good inspection

Oscar W. Richards, of Buffalo, tried colchicine for slowing down division of yeast cells The stuff upset all precedents It speeded up the division. Mr. Richards reports to the American Association for the Advancement of Science that he has found a reason To most plant cells the gout remedy is a sedative drug To yeast cells it is food.

BUILDING LOW PASSING, TRADE MAGAZINE SAYS

Builders See Indications of More Favorable Trend Early In Future.

Last month the editors of Building, trade magazine, suggested that men in the building and other lines of business be alert to evidence of a possible building upturn. And they reported that amplified statistical and other studies would be made in order to present in coming months the progress or delay of the indicated building upturn.

Studies of building volume from February 16 to date disclose that the turn may actually have been made. Particularly is this indication found if the overall building picture alone is considered.

In other words, for the country as a whole, and for the total value of the three main classifications of building, general, residential and alterations and repairs, the bottom would seem to have been scraped during January, and spring months this year may see a boomlet.

Hazards Present.

Before however categorically informing building men that the bottom definitely has been reached, and that the upturn is on the way, the editors urge consideration of factors that may change the situation for better or for worse.

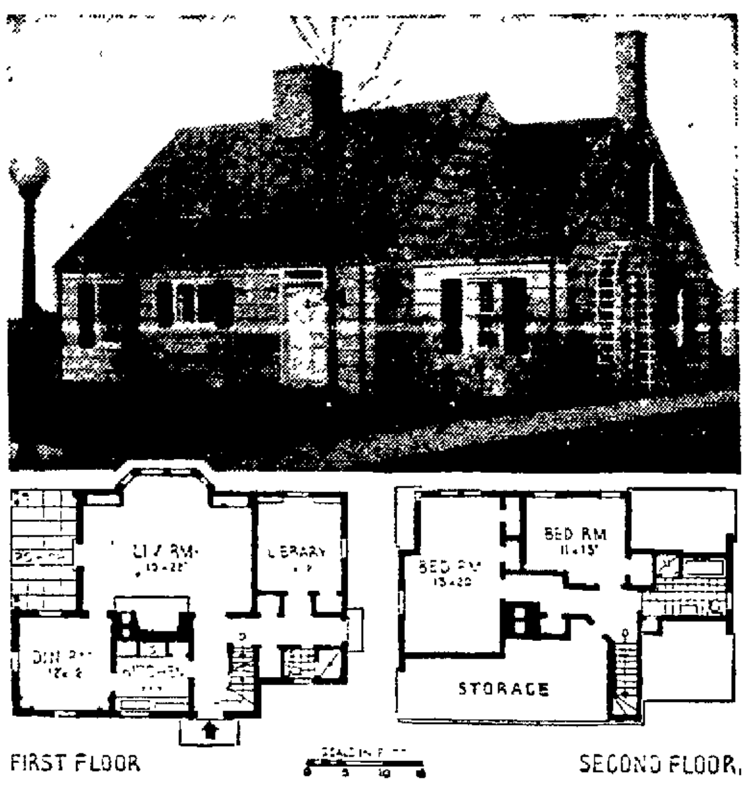
The general business picture, the rate of industrial activity, favorable or unfavorable legislative action—these all will have their effect on the building trend.

And the possible building upturn, seen through the statistician's eyes, is tempered by the fact that the indicated improvement is largely restricted to one section of the country, the Mid-Atlantic section. Only two other sections have shared in the recent indicated upturn.

It was the tremendous value of permits issued during December and January that built up a huge backlog or reservoir, of building volume And the greater part of these permits were taken out in one section, the mid-Atlantic.

This mid-Atlantic increase was attributed largely to the adoption of a new building code in January in New York city During February, however, New York permit valuation declined sharply—about 94 per cent—from the January figure.

Colonial Charm in Cottage



Modern planning combines smoothly with colonial style in this trim Long Island cottage.

By placing the living and bedrooms at the rear, Architect Arthur H. Esbig has added considerably to the occupants' privacy and has kept the simple roof planes in front

The living room has a generous bay window. The dining room has corner cupboards built in. The porch is where it should be—at the rear. The library, for the sake of seclusion, doesn't even connect with the living room. If necessary, this room could become a guest room, for a shower bath and lavatory are just across the hall.

Five closets and a big storage space upstairs answer the housewife's dream.

This small house plan was selected by The Architectural Forum, 135 E. 42nd St., New York, N. Y.

FOLDING DOORS

Sometimes the door to a bathroom or closet cannot be opened without knocking into fixtures. A door divided in two vertically and hinged with double-action hinges might prove helpful.

DAINTY NURSERY

For the nursery, a deep cream color ceiling harmonizes with walls of soft, light blue decorated with a stenciled bird and animal design in black, cream and blue. The natural finish wood floor has a deep blue rug. Curtains are white with red dots French grey furniture has a red trim. A blue bedspread is tufted with red candlewicking.

HELPS VISITOR

Adequate light at the entrance to a house is always desirable. Recessed light fixtures, flush with the side of a doorway or directly over it will display the street number of a house advantageously and will prevent the visitor from stumbling over the steps or walk. A lighted walk between house and garage will be found useful.

WINE, GREEN, TAN

An intriguing color harmony created by an eminent New York decorator for a living room includes wine, golden green and soft tan. The room is below the hall level so it is entered by a flight of steps with a handrail of rosewood and chromium. A pale shade of tan paint colors the walls, broken by Dubonnet window hangings and a Dubonnet couch. Rosewood end tables hold chartreuse lamps with tan shades. Two of the upholstered arm-chairs are done in chartreuse and two in Dubonnet.

Davey Lashes Back at Critics on State Coal Buying

ASSERTS OHIO COSTS LOWER THAN NRA RATE

Non-Bidding Policy Helped Miners' Wage Levels, Says Governor In Blast.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Gov. Martin L. Davey upheld the state government's coal purchases today with the assertion that fuel was bought for prices less than those fixed by the federal coal commission and the old NRA.

Answering charges hurled at his administration by the recent senate investigating committee, the governor said in a radio address last night that while "the purpose of their (investigators') unholy procedure was to create the impression that everything about coal purchasing was immoral, illegal and reprehensible . . . the facts are exactly the contrary."

9 to 10 Cents Less.

The state purchasing department, he said, had paid for coal since the National Recovery act was declared unconstitutional from nine to 20 cents a ton less than code price, and from 24 to 34 cents less than the minimum fixed by the coal commission.

Failure of the purchasing department to take bids on coal purchases, he added, resulted from a policy designed to safeguard miners' wage-levels. Previous administrations inaugurated the system, he said.

"If the state coal business were open to competitive bidding," the governor asserted, "the great bulk of it would go to low-wage and non-union coal regions outside Ohio. The state's fair-price policy does protect the wages of Ohio miners."

Davey listed four subjects which, he said, were developed during committee hearings and were "worthy of serious notice." They were:

The testimony of Lee Bradley, now charged with perjury; the liquor department's trucking contract, which under Davey's order will be modified or discontinued, the "hot mix" pavement overcharges, and over-payment to the Maher-North company, coalbrokers at Cleveland, on state purchases.

Basis of Suit.

The "hot mix" charge became the basis of a taxpayers' suit filed by Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson, Columbus attorney, against State Highway Director John J. Jaster, jr., and 26 other defendants.

Mrs Dickinson claimed the state was over-charged between $2,000,000 and $5,000,000 in "hot mix" purchases and asked double the loss in damages.

Depositions in the case were taken at the court house yesterday until Charles S. Druggan, attorney for the Hot Mix Bituminous Industry of Ohio, Inc, objected to introduction of records brought from the highway department offices He was upheld in his contention that an Ohio code prohibited removal of records from state offices The hearing will be resumed Wednesday in the highway director's office.

Suggests Ban On Radios In School Buses For Ohio

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's rural students will ride to school without benefit of radio if approval is given to tentative school bus specifications outlined today by Clayton D. Hutchins, state supervisor of school transportation.

"A radio in such a vehicle may tend to distract the driver's attention from his work," Hutchins asserted.

In a report based on surveys in other states, Hutchins also recommended all-metal construction, more rigid and "uncut" chassis, governors to limit speed to 40 or 45 miles an hour, safety glass throughout, stop warning lights front and rear, proper and uniform signs on the sides, scrapping all buses more than eight years old, and restricting passenger capacities to 70 persons.

She claims no relationship to the Gump family on the comic page, but Miss Mary Newcomer, secretary to County Engineer Howard C. One Mansfield woman is wondering whether it pays to be honest. She made a small purchase at a downtown store and as she went out the door, counted her change and found the clerk had given her 80 cents too much. She went back to the salesgirl who had waited on her, and started with "You gave me the wrong change—" when the girl interrupted in a business-like manner with. "Sorry, Madame, but you should have counted your chance before you left the counter. We can't rectify mistakes after you're left." So the customer spent the 80 cents for herself and like Clarence (Radio) Stroud, was "happy about the whole thing."

While the Lambs no longer "gambol" on their birthdays, they still have 'em, and yesterday (the first day of spring) as the natal anniversary for Dr. R. R. Black, T. R. Barnes, and C. P. Ross. Years ago there was a fairly large group of Mansfielders who had identical birthdays and they called themselves the Lambs club and always got together at the Elks club for a quiet little celebration. Dr. Black still makes a holiday of his, and while there is no mark to distinguish it on the calendar, March 21 is really Dr. Black's birthday, to him. It was also the birthday anniversary for a number of well-known Mansfield women—but women seldom celebrate their birthdays.

The golf season does not open officially for several weeks, but Mansfield shotmakers are already claiming records. Frank Cipris, 69 Superior street, one of the more promising younsters in the city, used up only 31 strokes on nine holes at Possum Run yesterday. Frank did not explain, however, whether he actually putted to obtain the score or played the usual pre-season rules of conceding putts on unconditioned greens.

fective in eliminating post-operation infections.

Robertson was accompanied to Mansfield by George H Bucher, new president of the company, who is making his first visit to Mansfield in that capacity Also in Mansfield today, attending the quarterly meeting of executives, were about 100 other company officials.

The Mansfield plant, Robertson said, employs about a twelfth of the company's 50,000 workers under normal conditions, but ranks at the top of the list in spreading the name "Westinghouse" over the world, since its products are used chiefly in homes.

Although the recession has forced sharp reductions in operations at the Mansfield plant at present, other plants of the company have not been so hard hit—especially those making heavy equipment, which takes a long time to complete, Robertson said.

"Right now, at East Pittsburgh, we are shipping more than we are selling. completing orders that were placed months ago. Naturally, such a situation would not apply in a plant like Mansfield, where the product is quickly built"

Robertson has been chairman of the board of Westinghouse since January, 1929. He and his fellow executives, who were guests of Arthur E Allen, vice president in charge of the Mansfield plant, arrived by train this morning, and will leave tonight.

100 START CAMPAIGN TO SIGN 1,000 CIVIC MUSIC MEMBERS

Approximately 100 Mansfield men and women started out over the city today seeking 1,000 memberships in the Mansfield Civil Music association, to bring to the city next year another program of top ranking musical artists.

Armed with prospect cards and information on the talent available for the second season of the association, the workers, under direction of majors, were to seek first to renew memberships of the 700 persons who belonged to the association in its first year.

After that task has been completed, they will try to obtain 300 new members, which will make it possible to stage four concerts in 1938-39, or bring to the city three concerts featuring artists of even higher rank than those obtained for the first season.

Workers were given their instructions at a dinner meeting last night at the Park Avenue Baptist church, at which Rev. D N Roller, president of Civic Music, presided Mayor Claude M Hunter, who yesterday proclaimed this week as "Civic Music week" in Mansfield assured the workers of his support and help, and wished them success in their undertaking Others who spoke were W. L Miller, superintendent of schools and past president of the association, Judge C. H. Huston, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Paul W. Williams, C. of C. secretary, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, hospital superintendent, and Mrs. Paul W. William, general chairman of the membership campaign.

Mrs. Mercedes Walker New York, representative of the Civic Music association told what talent is available for the new season, and gave workers their instructions

Workers will make their first reports on memberships at a meeting Wednesday at headquarters in the Ohio Fuel Gas company office and will report again Friday Leaders hope to complete the campaign by Saturday night

BORAH TO LEAD BATTLE OVER NAVY PROGRAM

$1,100,000,000 Expenditure Called 'Preposterous' by Senator La Follette.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The administration's naval expansion bill, outspoken critics indicated today, will become a vehicle for far-reaching senate debate on foreign policy, neutrality and national defense.

Senate opponents of the bill, which the house passed yesterday 292 to 100, are led by Senators Borah (R., Ida.) and LaFollette (Pro.-Wis.)

LaFollette, calling the projected $1,100,000,000 expenditure for new ships "preposterous," criticized particularly the proposal of naval experts to develop fleets capable of defending the United States on both coasts at the same time.

"We seem suddenly to have discovered the Atlantic ocean," he commented. "I always thought it was an asset from a defense standpoint, but now it seems that it is a liability—which is silly."

Says Bill's 'Warlike.'

Senator Nye (R., N D) said the "big navy" was warlike and would call for "the most insane program that could be pursued."

Chairman Pittman (D., Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee said, however, there was no doubt that the bill would pass in virtually the same form as it was approved by the house He added:

"The United States hasn't any partners among the nations, doesn't want any partners. Because of that, we must be prepared to make other nations afraid to attack us. It's the cheapest kind of peace insurance."

Secretary Hull gave renewed emphasis to this "no alliance" attitude yesterday in a statement deploring bombardment of noncombatants by insurgent forces in Spain.

As approved by the house, the measure carried no funds for construction, but President Roosevelt has recommended that work be started on two of the three battleships it would authorize and on two of the nine cruisers

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

James and His Petition.

IN SOME cold-hearted quarters a certain amount of skepticism is being exhibited about this business of Col. James Roosevelt, the 30-year-old secretary-son of the president, and the Massachusetts lieutenant governorship. It isn't, some say, quite as sweet as it looks.

Last week there was brought down to the colonel by political friends a petition, allegedly signed by 100,000 voters, urging him to be a candidate. After expressing "deep appreciation" of the "high honor," the colonel, who, besides being his father's closest aide, has made, it is claimed more money in a shorter time out of the insurance business than anyone else in the country, promised to give this flattering request "serious consideration" and a definite reply in a few days. Every facility for getting the dialogue on both sides was given the newspapers. Nothing was ever made easier for them.

NOW it is possible to take two views of this—and two views are taken One is that it represents a spontaneous sentiment among the voters, inspired by the winning personality of this gifted young man, who has displayed so much ability in so many ways It is the sort of popular demand which he has no right to refuse. Therefore, it is argued, he will yield to the request. A "forward-looking man" like his father, he must respond to the "call of the people" and "dedicate" himself to their service. That is the view taken by the colonel's friends The other view, taken by those who do not love him, but who have a considerable knowledge of Massachusetts politics, is quite different.

IN THE first place, these say, the petition, even if it is not part phony, as all petitions are, does not mean a thing. Petitions never do. It would be just as easy to get 100,000 signatures to a petition asking the colonel not to run as to have gotten the 100,000 asking him to run, and they probably could be gotten with less labor and less money. In the second place, they say, the colonel has no real idea of being a candidate this year. This petition business is a piece of publicity intended as a "build up" for 1940, when, if things look propitious, he wants to run for governor In the judgment of those who hold this view, the colonel, some time shortly, will announce solemnly to his friends that, keen as is his sense of the great honor done him, he is convinced his duty at this time is to stick to his post in Washington, where he is so badly needed—or word to thast effect. Therefore, he must sacrifice his personal desires and say no, though it almost breaks his heart to do it—or words to that effect.

AS A matter of fact, they say, "Jimmie" would be simply crazy to run at this time. He probably wouldn't get the nomination and certainly would not be elected. While it is true he has been the exclusive distributor of federal patronage in the state, he distinctly has not endeared himself to the older party leaders, nor to the people He has more enemies than friends (always the fate of the patronage distributor) and the uncontradicted statement made in a weekly magazine that he had amassed a fortune of more than $500,000 in the last four years has created more feeling in Massachusetts than anywhere else Actually, he has no personal following and his position in state politics is wholly due to the jobs he has given out and his White House connection. At his age it could not be otherwise.

* * *

THE IDEA that the petition of 100,000 represents a spontaneous and real popular sentiment is a joke. The petition business is old stuff, somewhat amateurish, but still good for advertising purposes. The jobholders alone could drum up that many signatures. The last man who played this petition game in the state got 200,000 signatures to put him on the ticket, but only 10,000 votes in the election. That is the way Massachusetts politicians who do not admire the young colonel look at his petition. They expect him in the next few days, with a certain amount of Rooseveltian breast-beating and the usual unctuous expressions of appreciation, to decline to run and, getting wide publicity for being a noble young fellow, announce that he will stick to his job. It isn't important, but it will be interesting to see which view is right.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Thing that's appalling about the town's recurrent minor hoaxes is the fearful amount of good rehearsing that must go to waste in the end.

Speaking of the glamorous Gurie, of course, latest in a goodly parade of gay deceivers, and recently revealed by divorce court business as Sigrid of Norway via Cucamonga, Calif.

A girl doesn't drop a couple of years from her life without some study—especially when the period includes marriage in Cucamonga Try forgetting Cucamonga yourself and see how far you get.

But with study and rehearsal from a good script, it could be done.

Even without a script it could conceivably be accomplished I like to think of blonde Sigrid assiduously rehearsing lines like these:

"Sigrid, old girl you're a Goldwyn discovery. You came out of Norway to take up Mr. Goldwyn on his offer of a screen test, that time you met him in London. As a prospective glamor girl you couldn't possibly have married an American in Cucamonga, Calif., on Oct 4 1935 You've been kept out of the public eye Mr Goldwyn's boys already have explained that for you because Mr Goldwyn wanted to keep your Norwegian freshness untouched by the Hollywood atmosphere. Now honestly, Sigrid, have you ever heard of Cucamonga, Calif ? Of course you haven't!"

And I like to think—I hope at least that after arduous study of her role the charming Sigrid really began to believe it herself

And come to think of it, Sigrid never deliberately deceived anybody. She never once denied, to my knowledge, that on Oct. 4, 1935, she was married in Cucamonga, Calif., to an American

"Were you, or were you not, on Oct. 4, 1935, married in Cucamonga to an American?" is not exactly a stock question with reporters.

Miss Gurie, despite having what is probably a nice American estranged husband, still is glamorous Her screen personality, as revealed in that first picture which shall here be nameless, still is intriguing, and she still must be rated a pleasant find—so pleasant that we'll refrain from labeling her anything so alliteratively apt as "Cucamonga Cutie" which might be tough for a Norwegian exotic to live down.

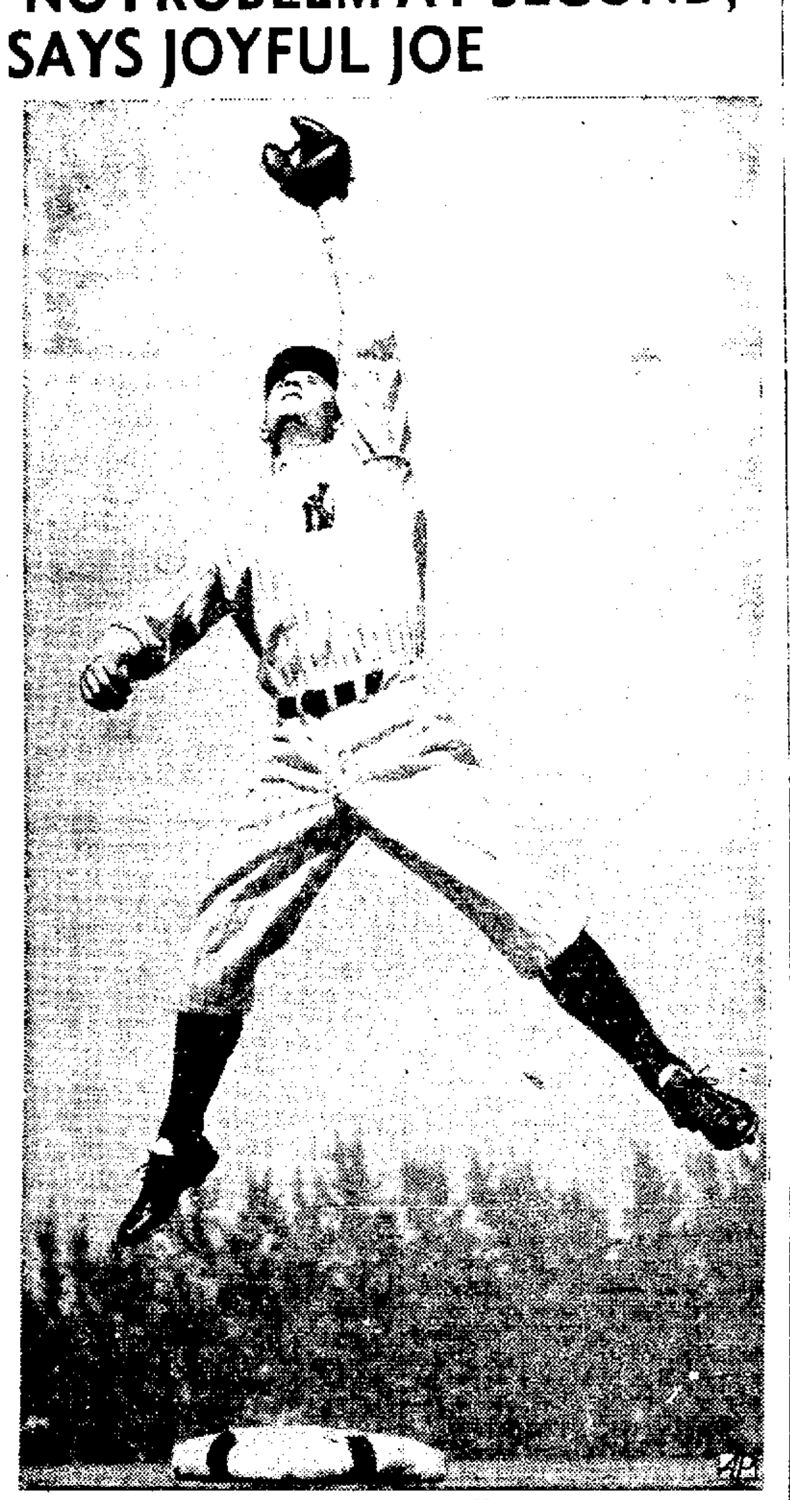
'NO PROBLEM AT SECOND,' SAYS JOYFUL JOE



JOE GORDON

By DILLON GRAHAM, Associated Press Sports Writer.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—A happy, fat Irishman hums tuneful ditties as he moves about the pine-fringed Yankee ballyard here these days. Plump Joe McCarthy has few worries.

Everything is rosy in the spring training camp of the world champions. All the cogs in the New York Yankee machine are in perfect shape and Marse Joe proudly calls your attention to the spirit and ginger of his Bronx Bombers.

They've won two straight championships, whipping their National league rivals with ease after dominating the race in their own loop, but there's nothing blase about the Yankees as they start after their third flag.

Just as Peppery.

They're just as peppery as the loud-yelping Gas House Gang from St. Louis, training for the National league campaign just a few miles away alongside the bay. These Yanks like to play ball, enjoy their drills, and when the barrier springs they'll be just as eager to win as are their rivals. Don't get the idea they are surfeited with triumphs.

McCarthy says he has no problem at second base, where Tony Lazzeri presided for so long: "Don't worry about Joe Gordon—he's going to be all right."

Gordon, the rookie from Newark, fields gracefully and covers more ground than old "Poosh-em-up" did, but his stickwork isn't up to Yankee standards. He hit .280 last season.

But McCarthy isn't fretting: "He takes a nice cut at the ball and, you never can tell, he may hit even better in our league."

Except for the pitchers, there are no other rookies around.

Billy Knickerbocker, the happiest man in camp since his escape from the St. Louis Browns, says he feels so great he'll give Gordon and Frankie Crosetti a battle for either second or short.

Likes Beggs, Donald.

McCarthy figures a couple of 6-foot twirlers from Newark, Right-handers Joe Beggs and Atley Donald, will more than take up the slack in the Yankee pitching. Beggs won 21 and lost 4 and Donald copped 19 and dropped two. "That's pitching in any league, and don't forget they play pretty fast ball in the International. Beggs and Donald look good to me."

NEW YORK—Mickey Farber, 126, New York, outpointed Victor Troise, 124, New York (8).

News-Journal To Present Tie Holders

Champions in the City bowling tournament to open at the Meder Recreation alleys a week from tonight will be well rewarded.

In addition to cash prizes, the champions will be awarded tie holders emblematic of the city championships by The News-Journal.

Each member of the championship five-man and doubles teams and the individual and all-events kings will receive the tie holders.

The News-Journal decided on the tie holders as awards after obtaining the preference of bowlers.

As virtually all bowlers wear tie holders while performing, the majority favored them over medals and belt buckles, which are usually offered in pin tournaments.

The tournament, which will be rolled on Tuesday nights for three weeks, will be conducted on a handicap basis to offer every sanctioned team in the city a chance. A four-fifths pin handicap will be permitted, with 195 as "scratch".

A minimum entry fee of one dollar per event will be assessed, with 40 cents going into the prize fund.

W. S. Young, secretary of the city association, announces that entry blanks are available at the Meder alleys. The deadlines for entries is Saturday.

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

SEVERAL of the rival Ohio State league cities were quite envious of the affiliation Mansfield had with the Boston Red Sox last year, but they've changed their minds since the American league club filed a demand for $5000 to return. And so have a lot of the home town faithful. . . . Because Mansfield is taking a little credit for winning the district cage championship, a sports writer of a nearby city is questioning the strength of the Tygers. But nobody is the least disturbed. . . . His post-tournament alibis for Bellevue and Tiffin Columbian just don't register. Pretty words can't take the title away from the Tygers and, judging from the talent available for next season, we're not so sure that the home town boys won't take it again next winter.

GOLF is next on the program. Courses are soft and soggy, but the number which is taking advantage of this perfect weather is surprisingly large. . . . Mt. Vernon remembers Eddie Burns, coach of the Cincinnati Roger Bacon, which vanquished Mansfield in the state tourney, as a student and cager at St. Vincent high. . . . Eddie Lowe, who scored 300 points for Mt. Vernon high, is through, but he has a promising brother who will advance to the varsity. . . . Because he is "cleaning out the cliques," Oscar Vitt will make a winner out of Cleveland. Lou Gehrig believes. . . . Gehrig, incidentally, will have to play regularly until mid-season of 1941 to reach his goal of 2,500 straight games. . . . And did you know that Vitt has recalled that edict that a fine of $500 would be plastered on any Indian caught drinking with Rollie Hemsley? It made Rollie an outcast, and "Old Os" was the first to realize it.

LAST CHANCE TO SEE COACHES TONIGHT

Followers of the Richland county coaches' cage team will be offered their final chance to see the mentors in action in the vicinity tonight when they engage the Sandusky Faculty, undefeated in six years, at Mansfield high. The game is open to the public.

Tygers Schedule State Court Champions, Runners-Up

Tommy Henrich Makes McCarthy Look Good.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—Tommy Henrich is making Joe McCarthy look very good these days. There were some doubts as to whether the New York Yankees' manager had guessed right when he gave Tommy the right-field job made famous by Babe Ruth, but in yesterday' game with Cincinnati Henrich cut off a runner heading for third with a fine throw, made a spectacular catch of a short fly and hit two singles.

EX-CHAMP BEATS HART

The Great Mephisto, ex-light-heavyweight champion of the world, decisioned Frankie Hart, Holland, in the feature match of last night's Quality club wrestling show in the Armory.

The Great One and Hart spent most of the time arguing with each other and with the referee.

After about 30 minutes Hart clamped the ex-champ in his "flying windmill" grip and slammed him about the ring for several minutes. When Mephisto broke the grip, Hart attempted to butt the Great One into submission, but Mephisto grabbed Hart and smashed him to the mat with a "pile drive" to win the fall.

Hart was so shaken up he was unable to continue and the Great One was awarded the bout.

Jack Claybourne, colored light-heavy from Chicago, won over Sterling Davis of Texas in the semi-final bout. They grappled for 13 minutes before Claybourne let go with a series of "kangaroo kicks" and completed the fall with a "jack knife."

The second fall, which also went to Claybourne, was a repetition of the first, and required 9 minutes.

Eddie Pope, Rocky Mount, N. C., chiropractor, and "Wild Man" Henry Hill, Salem, Ore., had the crowd in a high pitch during the opening bout, which Pope won in 16 minutes with a leg lock.

Lutherans Can Cinch Share

First Lutheran's representatives in the Class A Church league can cinch at least a share of the title Wednesday night at the Y. M. C. A. where they face United Presbyterian in the 10 p. m. game.

First M. E., a half game behind, meets St. Pauls at 9:15. Episcopal and Emanuel tangle at 7 p. m., Mayflower and Central M. E. at 7:45, and Park Avenue Baptist and St. Johns at 8:30.

Tonight's tilts in the Class B league at the Y: First Lutheran vs. Mayflower, 7:00; St. Johns vs. B'Nai Jacob, 7:15; Central M. E. vs. First Presbyterian, 8:00; First M. E. vs. South Main, 8:15; Park Avenue Baptist vs. First Christian, 9:00.

Handballers Vie Wednesday

Mansfield handball exponents were marking time today as they prepared to participate in the Y. M. C. A. city tournament opening Wednesday night at the Y.

First round pairings pit Dr. Stern against Andy Klein, C. S. Fienberg against William Huck; William Slitt against Pete Merschdorf, Kelly against Brunner, and Ned Brooks against Terry Kennedy. Frank Balbaugh, outstanding favorite to annex the championship, Paul Muth and Zane Wilson drew byes. All first round games must be played this week, Don C. Cram, physical director, announced today.

ACES SQUARE SERIES AT FRIENDLY HOUSE

The Aces defeated the All Stars, 27 to 24, at the Friendly House last night to deadlock the three-game playoff for the Intermediate league championship at one-all. The third and deciding tilt will be played tonight.

STILL IN RUNNING

NEW YORK—(INS)—Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia today was still in the running for the world's pocket billiards title as a result of a 125 to 3 victory over Willie Mosconi.

BOWLING SCORES

SCORING as a whole was below par in bowling leagues in operation at the Meder alleys last night. However, a few fair counts were registered.

The American Legion of the Club league, for instance, piled up a 2827, while the Optimists came through with a 2742 and the Gas Meters rolled a 2732.

Art Hilborn of the Optimists smashed out a 631 to set the individual pace. Unger and Cole of the Gas Meters shot respective scores of 620 and 614.

The only other 600 total was rolled by Meder of the Assembly team of the Shelby Cycle league. He accounted for a 257 and 605.

Book Series With Other Tough Foes

A "SUICIDE" schedule will confront the Mansfield high school plank pounders next winter.

Coach J. Russell Murphy today announced the tentative schedule which includes games with four of the 16 teams that compete in the state finals this year.

Included in the card are games with Newark, crowned state champion last Saturday, and New Philadelphia, runner-up in the Ohio cage classic.

Book 1937 Champs

The other state finalists added to the schedule are Hamilton, 1937 champion and a semi-finalist this year, and Canton McKinley, eliminated by New Philly in the quarter finals.

Other basketball powers obtained for games on the 1938-39 schedule are Massillon, rated as one of the stand-out teams in the state this year, and Erie, Pa., Strong Vincent. Massillon was the only team to defeat Newark this season.

The Mansfield schedule is not complete, but Murphy said that Columbus South and East, Shelby, Ashland and Sandusky will again be met next season.

None of the dates are definite, Murphy stated. Contracts for all of the games will be signed in the near future.

Home-and-home games will be played with Newark, New Philadelphia and Canton McKinley. Hamilton will appear in the city on a barnstorming tour early in the season. The site of the Massillon game has not been definitely set, but the Erie, Pa., school will appear here.

This schedule appears to be the toughest ever arranged for the Mansfield high courtiers, who made their first appearance in a state tournament last week for the first time in 11 years.

Excited Detroiter Rolls Into Second Place.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Yesterday's program on the ABC alleys was highlighted by the 713 run chalked up by Jack Stahl, 26-year-old Detroiter who climbed into second place in the singles event and the nightly 1,292 score rolled by Freddy Taff and Buzz Wilson of St. Louis in taking over the lead in the doubles bracket.

Stahl got here barely in time to go on after abandoning his car, trying a bus and finally chartering a plane for the final lap. After rolling games of 242 and 256 he got so excited when he found he could land among the leaders that he rolled the tenth frame of his final game in the wrong alley and had to do it over again. He wound up with a 215 count.

All of the players of this year's team will return next winter, except Johnny Hallabrin and Elmer Dials, in addition to the Reserve team, rated as one of the strongest developed at Mansfield High in years.

STOCK BROKERS ENCOURAGED BY BUSINESS SIGNS

Find Comfort In Statements by Roper, Industrialists Pertaining to Upturn.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The price tendency was moderately upward in today's stock market, although few buyers were inclined to reach for favorites.

Bonds did better, but commodities were a shade mixed. Foreign Securities market did little either way.

Brokerage quarters found a grain of comfort in statements of Secretary of Commerce Roper and industrial leaders which indicated conditions important to increasing activity were appearing on the business horizon.

Holders of steels and other building material company stocks were interested in surveys disclosing construction projects unaugurated since the first of the year have shown a distinct upturn over the like 1937 period.

non-Nazis in the department of public works.

The only condition for non-Nazis to obtain jobs was that they had not been guilty of maltreatment of Nazis in the past.

Meanwhile, reports abroad of a "wave" of suicides in Austria were deprecated.

Authorities told the United Press that the foreign reports of suicides were "highly exaggerated." They said that the total number of suicides in Vienna since Germany annexed Austria was 94 in addition to 100 attempted suicides reported to police.

Chamberlain Maps Cabinet Speech.

LONDON—(INS)— Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain prepared today to make an important statement on British foreign policy Thursday—aimed at safeguarding French security and Czechoslovakian independence.

The government also quickened the pace of its efforts to reach an agreement with Premier Mussolini before Chancellor Hitler visits Il Duce in Rome this May.

With these moves Britain brought to a decisive stage her diplomatic offensive to reduce Europe's war dangers and checkmate Nazi Germany's annexation of Austria.

Chamberlain promised to make his foreign policy pronouncement in the face of a notification from the British dominions that they would oppose any fresh British commitments in Europe.

Hear Lithuanian Cabinet Resigns.

KAUNAS, Lithuania — (INS) — Fears of a new Baltic crisis spread today amid reliable reports that the entire Lithuanian cabinet submitted its resignation owing to public indignation against the government's surrender to Poland's ultimatum.

There were unconfirmed rumors, however, that President Antanas Smetona refused to accept the resignation until Premier Jonas Tubelis returns from a trip to Switzerland.

Meanwhile, the president was believed hastily striving to line up a new government and thus avoid possible fresh friction with Poland.

It was believed War Minister General Stasys Dirmantas may succeed Tubelis if the government's resignation is finally accepted.

Meanwhile, Lithuanian students entered a 10-day period of mourning over Lithuania's acceptance of the Polish ultimatum. Other sections of the population demonstrated their "humiliation" because the nation bowed before Poland's superior armed might.

In addition, there were reports that some 50,000 Polish troops and scores of war planes were massed near the frontier despite an order from Warsaw to begin withdrawal of these forces.

Believes Defeat Looms for Jap Army.

WITH THE CHINESE RED ARMY IN HOPEH PROVINCE, NORTH CHINA —(AP)— China's red commander, Yu Cheng-Tsao, believes the Japanese army is nearer defeat than at any time since the Oriental war began a little more than eight months ago (July 7).

Guerrilla matches, the red army general related at his headquarters here in central Hopeh far behind Japanese lines, have isolated large forces of Japanese battling toward the Yellow river on the central China front.

Their communications have been cut, transport trains wiped out, many of their small railway station garrisons, annihilated, and their only food supply in some cases is reaching them by airplane. Many Japanese troops are in a precarious position, Yu said.

ACTS TODAY ON MORGAN OUSTER

Capital Hears Roosevelt to 'Fire' TVA Head, Then Pick Successor Immediately.

tors David E. Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan.

Most observers expected Morgan to fight the president's action through the courts.

It appeared certain he would participate in any congressional investigation, for he has said repeatedly that was the only way to show up conditions in the TVA accurately.

Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.), who had insisted on a senatorial inquiry, agreed today to joint action by senate and house, provided the anti-TVA activities of the power companies also are studied.

Yesterday's meeting between Mr. Roosevelt and the three TVA directors was called after Morgan twice had refused to substantiate his accusations against the two other board members.

Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan previously had given testimony in support of their counter-charges that Chairman Morgan had obstructed TVA activities

Morgan declined once more to speak. Then the president said these blunt words of the man whom he had described only a few minutes before as a "very old friend"

"Arthur E. Morgan has failed to sustain the grave and libelous charges of dishonesty and want of integrity which he has made against his fellow directors; his conduct in this respect is legally and morally unjustified

'Other Charges True.'

"On the face of the record, the charges of the other directors that Arthur E. Morgan has obstructed the work and injured the morale of the organization of the Tennessee Valley Authority must be accepted as true he has refused to offer testimony in denial of the charges

"Arthur E. Morgan is guilty of insubordination and contumacy in refusing to submit to the chief executive's demand for any facts upon which he based charges of dishonesty and want of integrity on the part of his fellow directors."

Unless he resigned or withdrew his charges the president told Morgan "only two courses appear open: either your removal or your suspension as a member of the board of the Tennessee Valley Authority."

Morgan replied

"Mr. President I deny the accuracy and the adequacy and representativeness of the statement you made. I have no other statements to make here now except these:

"It is my judgment that my resignation at this time would not be in the public interest Therefore, I do not tender my resignation I wish also to say that I challenge the suggestion and deny the right and the power to remove or to suspend me."

trapdoor to the concrete below.

Guards quickly placed the dazed man on a stretcher and handed him back through the trap, blood trickling from a cut near his ear. Warden C. M. Stone said a spring had broken, causing the accident.

Travis who had waited with the noose around his neck, then spoke first.

"I wish to meet everyone in this auditorium some day in heaven," he cried out, exultantly. "I hope to see every face in heaven with me. God bless you all. Goodbye."

Knows God Will Forgive.

It was Adkins' turn.

"I want to see you all in heaven" he said. "I know God will forgive. I am sorry for the family of Dr. Seder. Heaven is glory and I will meet you there. Goodbye. God bless you all."

There was a sharp report and Adkins and Travis dropped to their deaths.

They were followed 34 minutes later by Booth.

Booth's gallows speech was:

"I would like to offer a little prayer. I want to ask God to bless those two boys who went before me. I want God to take the burden off my father's heart and comfort the mothers of those boys. I ask God to bless the warden and all the prison guards and pray to the Lord to receive me."

A few hours before his execution, Booth, according to his attorney, told department of justice agents that a man living in Cleveland, who has never been arrested, had been the "brains" of the kidnaping.

All three issued statements yesterday a few hours before their last hour arrived. Each was titled "Testimony to the living from the death house of the West Virginia penitentiary."

Characteristic of the statements was that of Booth. He said:

"I wanted a good time with whisky and women. I thought I was having a good time, but you see just where it has brought me—to shame and disgrace. Now I am going to pay with my life."

He pleaded with young men and women of America to go to church and Sunday school instead of to beer gardens.

CHAPTER XXIV

Murray went to the other car.

"Senor Pablo," he said, "the Senorita Dolores requests that you return with her to Tijuana. Is it agreeable to you? And—" he loked at the man, who, it was quite apparent, had been kissing the widow—"and thank you for your aid, amigo mio."

"Oh, that was nothing. That was fun," said Pablo. "As for the Senorita Dolores, it will be—it will be a pleasure to—to accompany her back to Tijuana. In fact, a drink, or perhaps two, would be very—very welcome. Yes, I will kiss the widow several times."

As he spoke he climbed down from the car and started toward the other one. Murray saw him sway a little, wondered at Dolores' request, and followed him, to bring Carmen back to the car driven by Jose.

Murray clasped Dolores' hand. Said, "Senorita what I told Vasquez still hold true. I shall buy his half—your half—of the mine. And secure your release from him. You wish that?"

"Don Murray," said the girl, earnestly, "you are admirable." She watched Carmen getting into the car. Leaned toward Murray. Whispered. "I admire you. You are a man. And you will do as you say. But...I must tell you something. Take Carmen to Rancho La Luz. Protect her with your life. Don't worry about me. I have—friends." She looked at Pablo; but he was paying no attention; he was trying to light a cigaret with hands none too steady.

"And you wanted to tell me?" asked Murray.

"Carmen risked her life for me—twice," Dolores said. "That is why I married Vasquez."

Murray looked into her eyes, his own puzzled.

"To keep her out of Vasquez's clutches," explained Dolores.

"But still...I don't understand," Murray told her.

"Stupid!" whispered the girl. "Carmen is Sue Castle."

"Carmen...Carmen is...is Sue!" said Murray. "Well...I will certainly..."

"And," whispered Dolores, "isn't Vasquez going to be pleased when he finds it out?" She grinned, and Murray had to echo the grin. But immediately he grew serious again.

"Just so pleased," he said, "that he will—he will do unpleasant things to you, my dear. And that must not happen. Come with us to La Luz, and safety."

But the girl shook her dark head, let her eyes burn his.

"You and Sue are in love with each other already, Murray. Go get her. Take care of her. Vasquez will try again. And do not fear that he will hurt me. I have given a sworn statement to—" again she glanced at Pablo—"to a friend of mine which will make Senor Vasquez very, very sick when he knows about it. So I am safe. I mean it. But Sue is not. Now go, Murray. And when you and Sue are married, sometime I'll come to see you."

She held out her hand and Murray grasped it.

"If it hadn't been for Carmen, Dolores—" he said, smiling. Only half in jest.

"Or Vasquez," retorted Dolores "You musn't forget, Senor Americano, that I am a married woman. But married, I assure you, in name only."

"Thank heaven for that," said Murray. "Well, adois, Dolores. If—"

"All right, Chico," she said to the driver, who threw the car into gear. And then again she leaned over to Murray, whispered.

"Don't ever think that Carmen—Sue—isn't straight as a string," she said. "I know, Murray."

The car jerked, started off Murray and Dolores gazed into each other's eyes until the car curved.

Then they waved at each other, and Dolores waved at Carmen.

"Good luck, angel," Dolores called to her friend, and the machine sped down the road

Murray went slowly to the other car. He climbed into the seat beside Carmen—Sue now. He looked at her while the car started. Took her hand in his.

"So you are Sue Castle," he said, gently.

For a moment the girl was silent, looking away from him.

Then she nodded slowly.

"So Dolores told you," she said.

"Yes," assented Murray. "Dolores told me. I think Dolores loves you very much indeed."

"I—I think she must, Murray," said Sue.

"And—and so do I, Sue," said Murray.

The girl let her hand remain in his, but bit her lips.

"I—I was—afraid so, Murray," she said, at last.

"Afraid!" exclaimed Murray. "And—don't you—can't you—"

"Never so long as Vasquez lives," said the girl, choking. "Oh, Murray, don't you see? He's—he's had us both trapped—Dolores and me."

"But you're not trapped any longer, my dear," Murray told her. "You're free, and safe. Dolores—"

"Never free and never safe, Murray," said the girl, her lips twisting. "Never so long as Vasquez lives. And even if—if he should die—I can't—I couldn't—I could never be Sue Castle again. Let's — please — let's not talk about it. Not now. I—I've got to think. Things have been happening too fast. Poor Dolores. You do think she will be all right, Murray?"

Murray reassured her, but he could not reassure himself.

Old Don Vicente and the Senorita Mercedes were on the veranda of the hacienda when the car swept up the long driveway of Rancho La Luz. The anxiety evident upon their faces was replaced by joy when they saw Murray in the car, and the oldster breathed a low "Gracias adios."

As they rushed toward the machine, Don Ponce Robles came from the house, stared with astonished eyes, then he too went forward to welcome the arrivals.

After Murray had grasped the hands of Don Vicente and Mercedes, acknowledged the congratulations of Don Ponce, he turned to the Senorita Carmen, grasped her arm and brought her forward, quite unconscious of the cold stare of Mercedes at the girl.

"And I have the pleasure," said Murray, "to present to you Miss Sue Castle...in person."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed Don Vicente. "You mean...that you have really found her!"

"Murray...Don Murray!" cried Sue. "You—you musn't, I told you..."

"The silly child thinks she... thinks she can't go back, as the saying runs. It's nonsense. She'll get over it." Just because she's been an entertainer—in Tijuana."

* * *

As he finished speaking he became aware that Mercedes was coldy and silently appraising Sue from head to foot. Aware that she had spoken no word of welcome. And even as he became aware of this, Mercedes shrugged, turned from the girl, and said:

"You remember what I told you, Murray." And marched off, head high, eyes glowing with anger.

Muray remembered. Remembered her saying: "Do not bring her here when you find her. I do not want to see her. Ever."

It was his turn to shrug now, and he did so with vigor. Miss Mercedes was a spitfire She had been boss of Rancho La Luz too long It was time she learned to consider other people a bit. It was time . . .

He saw Don Ponce turn and join Mecedes. Speak quickly to her, but in a voice inaudible to the others. Saw the girl half turn, look quickly at Don Ponce, shrug again . . . and keep on going, away from the house.

Don Vincente was embarrassed. He put his arm around Sue's young shoulders, drew her toward the veranda. But he spoke to Murray.

"Don't mind her, Murray. She'll be all right. Guess that bump on her head nakes her irritable Come and tell me all about what has happened." He called to Charlie Kilbourne, who had been talking with Jose near the car. "Come along, Old Timer. We're going into conference."

"Pronto," replied Charlie. "Just a minute." He turned back to Jose.

"You really think that, Jose?" he asked.

"Me, I betcha I theenk that, Don Carlos," replied Jose. "Me, I am goeeng to—w'at you say?—keep the skins off of my eyes, huh? You watch, and eef I am wrong I weel kees a policeman. But eef I am not wrong, I weel make heem kees a forty-five bullet. Unless you want to keel heem yourself, Don Carlos."

"Whichever gets the first chance, Jose," replied Charlie Kilbourne, laughing, and went to join the others on the veranda.

Started to join them, that is. But stopped abruptly, with a word of warning to Jose, dropped his hand to the pistol slung on his right hip. For a small car came rushing toward the house.

"It's all right," said Jose, whose eyes were better than old Charlie's. "That ees Pablo Sanchez and—yes—Dolores. Senora Vasquez, I mean. But he drives crazee."

That was sure. The car swerved from side to side. But as it got nearer, the reason became manifest. Pablo Sanchez's head was tied up with a strip of white cloth, and Dolores leaned heavily against him, as though in a swoon.

"They are hurt," cried Jose, and ran toward them. "Vasquez, I betcha."

Charlie Kilbourne ran after Jose Don Vincente and Murray and Sue rushed from the veranda. Don Ponce and Mercedes, not far away, turned and stared.

The car slithered to a stop. Pablo swayed from side to side, shut off the engine.

"Take care of Dolores," he said, in Spanish. "She's been shot by Vasquez. In the shoulder. She's fainted, I guess."

THREE FINED ON TRAFFIC COUNTS

Driving Licenses of Two Suspended For 90 Days; One Unable to Pay, Jailed.

Three autoists arrested over the week-end for violation of the traffic code were fined a total of $35 and costs in municipal court yesterday. Two of the drivers had their operators' permits suspended for three months.

Harold Steigerwalt, 19, of McCutchenville, arrested by state highway patrolmen on route 30 N, three miles west of the city Saturday, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless and reckless driving. He was fined $10 and costs and his drivers license suspended for 90 days. Unable to pay the fine, he was committed to county jail.

Convicted on a similar charge, Vernon Dale Silverthorn, 20, of Cleveland paid a fine of $20 and costs. His operator's permit also was suspended for 90 days.

State patrolmen who arrested Silverthorn on route 42 near Windsor early Sunday morning, testified that the defendant was driving a bus loaded with Cleveland children at an unreasonable speed and in a reckless manner.

Pleading guilty to a charge of failure to register a motor vehicle cost C. Baird, 148 East Third street, $5 and costs. State highway patrolman said Baird had out of state license plates on his car.

TRIMS SCHOOL FUNDS $14,600

Board Approves Appropriation of $680,000 to Operate System This Year.

H. W. Arlin, president of the board, urged that the measure be approved and that "every effort be made to keep replacement and new equipment costs down."

The new appropriation is based on an estimated income figure which is $4,069 less than last year. Of the total $680,760 estimated income, $202,000 will come from the state under the foundation program and the rest from county tax receipts.

Major reductions in the 1938 appropriation include an $11,916 cut in the allowance for classroom and building supplies and a $10,518 reduction in the amount needed for building and grounds improvement and new buildings.

With all new textbooks purchased in the past two years, the committee appropriated only $2,000 for books as against $15,094 last year. The $2,000 will cover book replacements during the year, Supt. W. L. Miller said.

Principal increases in the 1938 budget are accounted for in a $13,809 raise in salaries of instructors and employes and a boost of $6,000 in the allowance for teachers' and employes' retirement contributions. A par of the salary increase, granted last May, was included in the 1937 budget

The employes' retirement law, which became effective last September, requires total contributions of $3,410 in 1938 There was no appropriation for that item last year. The teachers' retirement contribution cost increased from $11,000 last year to an estimated $13,580 this year. The increase is due to salary boosts.

In the entire appropriation, 20 items show increases over last year, 20 decreased and nine remained the same.

The committee included past due water bills totaling $4,968 in the new appropriation, but board members said it was doubtful if the entire debt can be paid this year. The money is owed the city of Mansfield.

The appropriation was drawn up by Supt. Miller, Dr. John H. Eristor, board clerk, Harold A. Bruce, board member, and J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings. Bruce is chairman of the committee

SIMPSON BEGINS SPRING SPORTS

Annual Intra-Mural Outdoor Program Includes Track Events, Kittenball.

With the arrival of spring, John Simpson Junior high school's intramural outdoor athletic program was under way.

The spring schedule includes track activities for the boys, and kittenball for both boys and girls, according to H. J. Dotson, principal.

Tryouts for places in the various track events are scheduled to begin this week under the supervision of Robert DeHaven, boys' physical education instructor, with competition getting under way within the next two weeks.

Schedules for the boys' kittenball league will begin this week with eight teams in the league representing eight different homerooms. Play will be held each day during the noon hour, with a tournament at the end of the season to select the winning team.

The girls' kittenball games will be under the supervision of Miss Wilma Snider, girls' physical education instructor. The girls will play during their regular gym periods. The girls volleyball tournament, now in progress, will end soon and will bring to a close the indoor intra-mural activities at the school.

PRESENTATION OF 'FIRST LADY' TO END PLAYERS' 12TH SEASON

As a wind-up of their 1937-38 season and their 12th consecutive year, the Mansfield Community Players will present "First Lady" next Tuesday evening at Senior high school auditorium The reserved seat board opens at Tawse's Fharmacy at 9 30 Friday morning

The play is the brilliant comedy written by Katherine Dayton and George S Kaufman and is distinguished by its clever dialogue and a penetrating picture of the "drawing room intrigue" that goes on in Washington behind the scenes The immediate theme is the battle of wits between two women with identical ambitions—to have their husbands named as candidates for the presidency of the United States.

Playing the leading roles will be Amy Carpenter Douglass, Cleveland, who was identified with the Community Players in its earlier years and who has more recently been active in the Playhouse group in Cleveland. Mrs. Douglass has been coming to Mansfield once a week to rehearse with the local players. She appeared in the first play ever presented by the Players, "Icebound," 12 years ago.

The Community Players is one of the few cultural movements in Mansfield that has survived that long a period, and after several years of difficult going in the early '30's, came back strong during the past season, with more season tickets sold than in any other year.

Helen Bacon, who was one of the players in "Icebound" is now director of the Players and in direct supervision of staging "First Lady."

Budget Balanced For Continual Relief

Sets Aside Few Pennies Daily—To Keep Famous World's Tonic on Hand.

Here's a man who puts health conservation on a business basis and tells how he is going to arrange his household budget so that he will always have on hand a first aid to occasional constipation by never letting the family medicine chest be without World's Tonic. This wise business man's name is Mr. R. R. Gardner, of 835 W. Main street, Massillon, Ohio, employed at Republic Steel.

"I feel so good since getting such splendid relief from that continual constipation that I'm going to set aside a few pennies each day so that we can always have World's Tonic in our medicine chest at home. I'm getting my whole family to use it at the first sign of constipation This frightful ailment brought me so much misery that I don't want any of my family to ever go through my experiences. Heartburn, gas and cramps with bad taste and billiousness were followed by bad breath, poor memory and a terrible muddy looking skin. Then too, there were pains and aches all over that made life miserable for me. I had just about lost all faith in medicines but tried once more with World's Tonic. I'm certainly glad I did for World's Tonic pitched right into that old constipation and in a few days I was getting smooth and liberal action. I started to improve in appearance and as the resulting ills from constipation wore off, I commenced to feel like a made-over man. Eating is now a pleasure and I can't get too much sleep either. You'll never find our home without World's Tonic.

No matter how much money you have spent or how many kinds of medicines you have tried without results, don't give up hope. Consider these honest and grateful expressions of relief from thousands of users, many of them living right here in town as your very neighbors. Talk to some of them. There must be reasons for all the good will this famous medicine, with its roots and herbs and valuable alkalines, is creating daily.

Get World's Tonic at Central Drug Store and all other up-to-date Drug Stores. (E33)—Adv.

The mortality rate among kidnapers steadily grows.

Yes, our land erosion is pretty bad, but the worst erosion in this country today is human.

What absurd people the English are—pronouncing nephew as "nevvew" and housewifery as "huzzifry." And then they laugh at us for calling America "Amurrica."

Fine Things For a Fine City.

MANSFIELD this week is in its second campaign for memberships in the Civic Music association, an organization which brought three entertainments of top caliber to the city during the past winter.

Last season, slightly more than 700 Mansfielders were privileged to see the famous Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, and to hear the duo piano artists, Luboshutz and Nemenoff, and Douglas Beattie, bass-baritone.

There can be no question that those Mansfielders who attended the concerts were pleased.

That ought to make it easier for the campaign workers in their effort to reach their goal for the second season of 1,000 members.

The fact that a city like Mansfield stages events of the caliber of Civic Music association entertainment does more than provide high class entertainment for the association's members. It brands the town as one of progress and culture—one in which the people have an appreciation of the finest in art.

An investment in a Civic Music membership by any individual, therefore, has far more significance than simply providing him with entree to high class concerts. His support helps to raise Mansfield to a higher place in culture.

Russian Recession.

STALIN and other dominant Russian leaders must have been impressed by the incredulity and horror with which the public in America and other free countries received the news of that last batch of treason trials in Moscow, along with hints of a more widespread "housecleaning." One of the most adequate comments on this episode came from the veteran American liberal, Oswald Garrison Villard.

"The news from Russia," he wrote in The Nation, "is simply appalling. That after protests from all over the world against those treason trials, the largest batch of victims is now on the rack—some on charges of having conspired against Lenin twenty years ago and against the life of Maxim Gorky—is surely proof that madness has taken charge of the Soviets.

"If it is not the madness of a single man, then it can only be explained as a wave of hysteria sweeping over Moscow like that which led to the witch trials in New England. It actually looks as if Stalin were going to 'liquidate' every last one of the men who made the revolution.

"Whether one man or a group is responsible, this strikes a deadly blow at the progress made toward a decent life for the masses of Russia. It plays into the hands of the dictators who are openly for the destruction of the Soviets and deprives Russia of the sympathy of those liberals the world over who, without being in the least committed to Sovietism, have felt that no more remarkable experiment in human government has been undertaken in modern times.

"Even Hitler killed his largest batch of victims when he yielded one night to craven terror. In Russia they are killing men in cold blood twenty years after the overthrow of the czar."

Annual Wage.

HENRY FORD has another important decision to make. and is believed to be doing some serious thinking about it. Will he make a practical trial of the "annual wage" plan, as a substitute for the daily or weekly wage system which prevails today?

That is, will he guarantee his tens of thousands of workers a definite minimum of wages per year, so that they will know all along what they can count on, instead of hiring them for irregular periods without any assurance of their annual income?

This plan has been definitely urged upon the Ford Motor company by Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan. He says, with probable truth, that Mr. Ford is the one industrialist in America who could do it, because he has the resources and holds the control of a great industry in his own hands.

Interest in the idea is rapidly increasing. It seems logical, because workers have to live 52 weeks a year, not merely during the weeks when they are employed. And it seems as if the richest industrial nation in the world should be able somehow to put its industry on such a rational basis.

Sabotaged Professions.

IT IS hard for Americans of any breed to think of medical science as having anything to do with race or religion. But apparently it has. A dispatch from Vienna immediately after the Nazification of Austria said:

> "Jewish physicians were barred from the Viennese Emergency Hospital organization. This was regarded as presaging firm action against Jewish physicians, who make up a large percentage of the Austrian medical profession. Vienna has been a world medical and surgical center.
> "Jewish druggists were told their medical supplies might be needed by hospitals. Some voluntarily emptied their shelves and donated their goods."

At the same time an exodus of Jews in the medical and other learned professions began.

Will Vienna ever again be a great medical center, any more than it will be again a great center of music, art and general culture?

The city's medical eminence came largely from her brilliant and devoted Jewish physicians and surgeons. With them deposed, starved and driven into exile, it seems unlikely that the substitutes provided by Adolf Hitler and his goose-stepping followers will attract either Jewish or Gentile physicians and surgeons from other lands like ours, where medical science is free from tyranny of race or politics.

No, the initials "T. V. A." don't stand for Tennessee Valley Argument.

Looks as if there'll be too many vacations this summer.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

Two men sat talking at the table next to mine in a large hotel. They seemed to be business men.

"In spite of all the attacks on President Roosevelt, his popularity remains," said one man.

"Yes," responded the other, "if an election were held today, he would win by a majority nearly as large as in 1936."

But the worker and the unemployed are beginning to become uneasy. They see what they believe to be "compromise" and defeats.

For example, the changes in the tax bill which will relieve corporations of severe burdens (and they ARE severe burdens) are not popular with the mass. They will be especially unpopular next year when more will have to be taken from the lower income brackets.

Part of that was through compromise, but the major part of those changes came through downright rebellion in the lower house of congress against the president. He may be "excused" on that basis, but both Democrats and Republicans will have a serious time explaining in 1940 why taxes in lower brackets are higher. Does that mean a third party could win? Hardly.

LEADERS.

Suppose a popular vote were held on leaders of the various countries with outstanding leadership?

Hitler would win easily in Germany, Mussolini in Italy, Stalin in the Soviet union.

Anthony Eden looms as a popular leader in England. The Socialists will find a dominant leader in France, if L[illegible] Blum does not become that man.

But who in the United States, if not Roosevelt? That, more than the European situation, is the uppermost question on the tongues of American politicians. They are worried. The majority of men played up by newspapers have no mass appeal. The reason, they admit, is plain—the mass is stronger New Deal than is President Roosevelt now.

A MISTAKE?

Europe now wonders over past mistakes.

It will be recalled that, 10 years ago, a conservative France, quite different from the present radical France, refused to permit a customs' union of Germany and Austria to go through. The people of both Germany and Austria were very much for it. But the old spirit of Clemenceau revenge remained in France.

Would there have been trouble today if that union had been permitted then? Bruening, a Catholic, was chancellor of Germany then, and of course the Austrian government was Catholic. It would have been a congenial union, and it would have been one of moderate democracy.

Today, Nazism, an overpowering political religion, takes everytihng without asking. Would Nazism have appeared anyway, as a symptom of world change?

Hitler knew more than the old politicians of Europe: that nothing is static, that one cannot be forced back to the old scheme of things, even by the most powerful weapons.

By the same token will Nazism not pass in favor of a new and vital democracy? Can people live in a false state of high emotion and economic inflation any length of time? Doesn't truth catch up [illegible] with the Nazis?

VALUES

If only we might surely know,
And surely realize.
True values of this life, see all
The scene in its real guise;

But we are handicapped and days
Pass busy on their way,
We are disturbed by incidents,
What people do or say.

What people think in masses, that
Is potent though it should
Not amtter, has no worth or weight
In any lasting good.

If only life's true values we
Could see, could comprehend,
The greatest problems of this world
Would then be at an end.

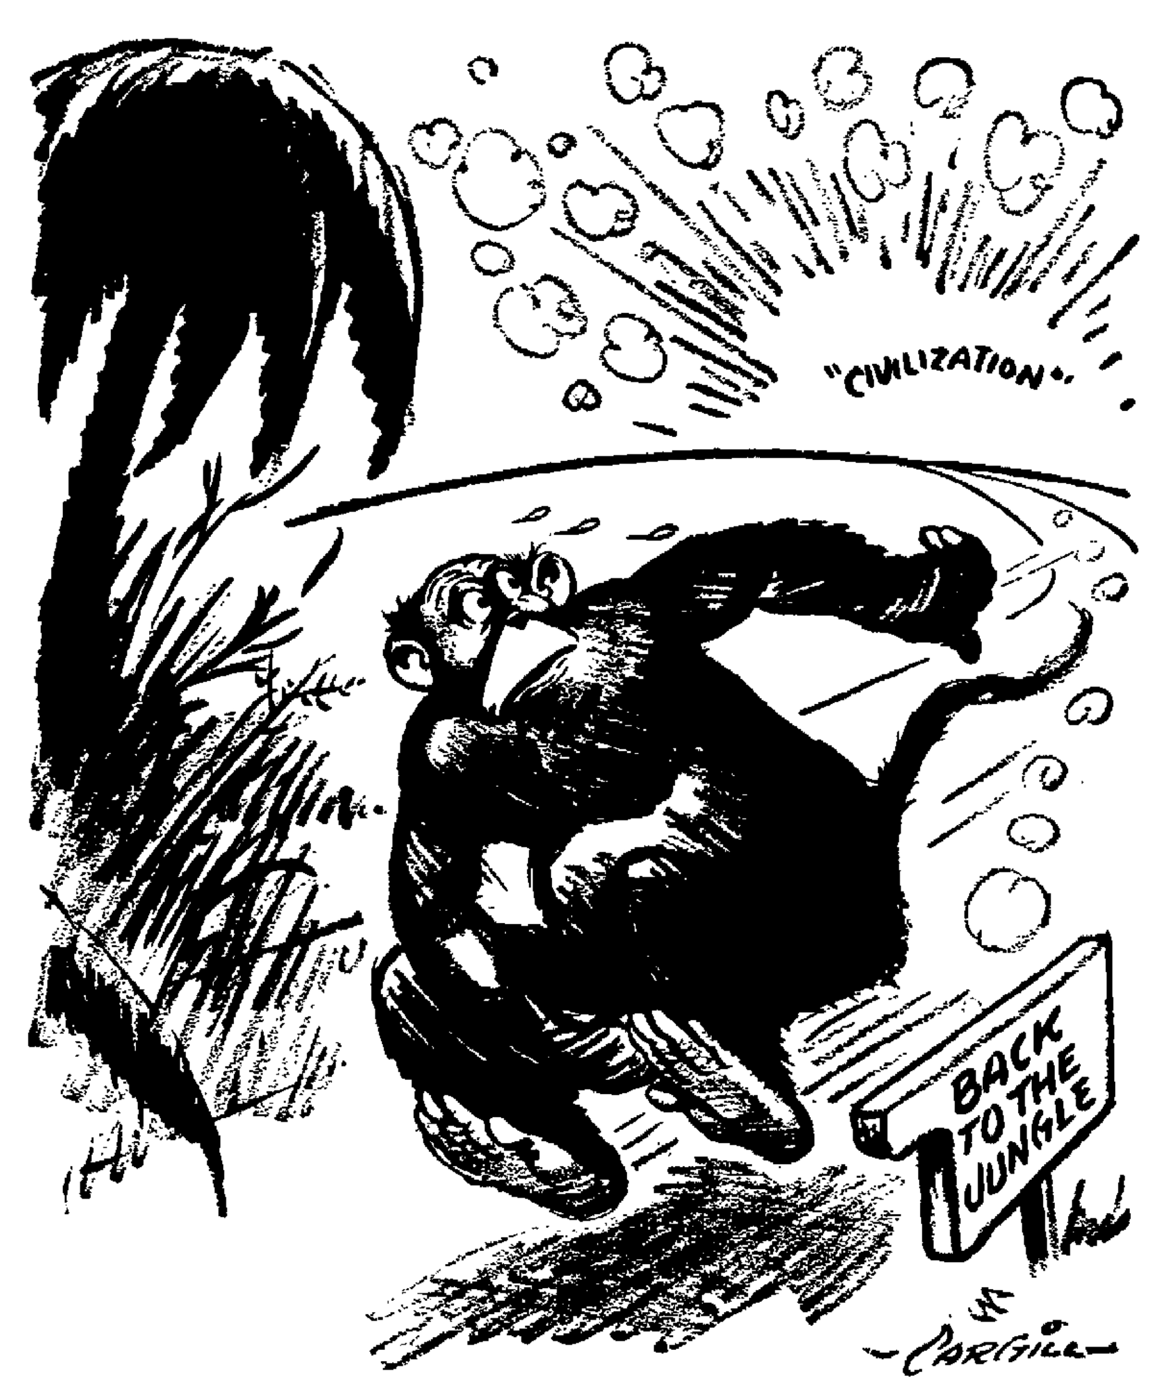
PEACE MOVEMENT—1938



We Might Avoid War – What of the Backwash?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—In the event of another war, throughout most of the rest of the world, keeping physically out of it is not the only problem the United States would have to consider.

Doubtless we would have been somewhat better off now if we had not actively participated in the last great conflict. We would have saved all the American lives that were sacrificed on European battlefields. We would not have had the recurrent issue of veterans' allowances to puzzle us. We still would have a lot of money that our powder and shot cost us.

But our economic backwash from that war would have been terrific, anyway.

WAR BOOMS COLLAPSE

Suppose another war, like 1914-to-1918's, with Uncle Sam on the side-lines, however.

Is it imaginable that American agriculture, industry and commerce would not be enormously boomed by it? They were thus boomed by the last war, before we went into it. We simply wallowed in profits—or what looked like them. War millionaires popped up in every direction. Farmers were affluent. Wages skyhooted. It was lovely—temporarily.

Now, assume that we never had taken a hand in that struggle, otherwise than as profiteers.

Does anyone argue that that boom would not have burst with unprecedented violence when the strife was over? Naturally it would have been deflated like a toy balloon, with a match put to it. Maybe it wouldn't have been as bad as the depression we did experience, but it would have been a-plenty.

HOW ESCAPE?

Of course, if statesmen could read the future, our own should have adopted measures, in 1914 or 1915, to counteract, as far as possible, the effects of what manifestly and inevitably was coming.

Yet, to expect so much probably would have been to demand too much of human wisdom.

The same situation prevails today.

It is not so much a question of keeping out of the threatened second world war as of escaping the economic aftermath of it—even if we are non-participants in it.

WOULD IT WORK?

If this country had (which God forbid) a government like Germany's or Italy's it might prescribe certain precautionary regulations.

It could (war having broken out abroad) limit our industrial and agricultural production to our own home requirements, preventing us from having huge overproduction to disorganize us with the return of peace conditions elsewhere. Perhaps it could guarantee American post-war "normalcy", as President Harding called it.

Under a totalitarian regime it could be done theoretically.

The United States plus the Latin Americans is sufficiently self-sustaining to live independently of Europe, Asia, Africa and insularity.

But that such a program would work practically! Every natural economic law is against it.

BACKWASH ENGULF US?

True, we have legislation now prohibiting extensions of credit to defaulting foreign peoples.

Exports of munitions to foreign belligerents are banned.

Exports of non-military supplies to them are prohibited except on a "cash-and-carry" basis.

But as it conceivable that, with an outside world war raging, we could be corked up tightly enough to insure us against the after-economic results of such a struggle?

Maybe we could keep out of it.

But the backwash?

Listen, World!

"Thou Hast Nourished My Soul With Futility."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

How rich life would be if we could have the things we want! How much stronger and wiser, kinder and better balanced we'd become if we weren't everlastingly heckled and handicapped by lack and failure!

Or would we?

We think we would. We're sure that pain and disappointment are senseless and wasteful—in our cases, at least. SOME people may need such discipline to bring out the best that's in them, but not you. No—you need love, happiness, success . . . they feed you . . . you flower under them.

Or do you?

Strange how we mortals fool ourselves . . . unable to see the real sources of our strength . . . needing to suffer cruelly, sometimes even to die, before we can get an honest perspective on our lives.

There was Jeremiah—that fearless flaming mystic out of great Israel's past. How unreal he seemed to you as a child, listening to the thunder of his wrath, the wild wail of his grief, keening and rashing about you in the village church.

But he wasn't unreal. Jeremiah lived, as surely and hotly, as any man lives today . . . loving, fighting, praying, cursing in great sobbing shouts . . . demanding and demanding those things he thought he needed, as you and I demand and demand today. Defying even God to deny those demands! Leaving God . . . giving himself over to strange and filthy adulteries of the soul . . . because God would not grant him his way!

A very human man . . . that thundering Jeremiah! And now Franz Werfel, who wrote "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh," has swept the cobwebs of time away and given us the real Jeremiah—flaming soul and furious flesh—in his new book "Hearken Unto the Voice" (Viking Press). A tremendous book . . . barbaric splendor, barbaric horror, heartbreaking pain. A great book to read at any time, but particularly so in these thoughtful days of Lent, when Life and the Soul pause, for a space, before the Mysteries . . .

No—not a religious book. Save as all Life is religious. Nor great merely because it presents a towering, historical figure. But great and true—and terrible—because it shows the struggle, the human spirit.

Not just Jeremiah's stormy spirit, but everyone's. Yours . . . mine . . . each one of us with some cherished dream and the firm belief that we know what's best for us. Each one of us wanting more power and joy out of life and centering our hearts on some person or thing which, we're sure, will give us our desire. Jeremiah, in his hot youth, yearning for dusky sweet Zenua. Jeremiah, in his battling manhood, longing to save Jerusalem. And you and I, with our own shining visions.

Well, why not? They're good things, fine things . . . why can't we have them? We're so eager for a great love, a proud, joyous fight . . . why must God send, instead, shock and shame and tears? Break our hearts with useless pain and wasteful waiting? Snatch away the cup, just as we lift it to our lips? Does that spell justice—or make sense?

Rebellious Jeremiah couldn't think it did. Yet, at the last, a strange enlightening came. Looking his life over, weighing its profit and loss, his wrung lips whisper their amazement. He had thought to live greatly by success. But instead—

"THOU HAST NOURISHED MY SOUL WITH FUTILITY!" he cries, in Franz Werfel's book. And then, in his immortal "Lamentations" continues—

. . . "THOU HAST REMOVED MY SOUL FAR OFF FROM PEACE . . . WATERS FLOWED OVER MY HEAD . . . I CALLED UPON THY NAME, O LORD, OUT OF THE DUNGEON . . . THOU HAST HEARD MY VOICE . . . THOU DREWEST NEAR . . . THOU SAIDST 'FEAR NOT!' . . . O LORD, THOU HAST PLEADED THE CAUSES OF MY SOUL: THOU HAST REDEEMED MY LIFE!"

"The causes of the soul"—how far removed they are from our petty, petulant plans!

MOTHER'S LOVE: Samuel ministered before the Lord, being a child, girded with a linen ephod. Moreover his mother made him a little coat, and brought it to him from year to year, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice. —I Samuel 2:18, 19.

Let's Look Around

Where Seminoles Gather for Ancient Rites.

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

LAKE WALES, Fla.—Back to Lake Wales, where the majestic Bok tower and sublimity of its surrounding sanctuary grounds, serve as a magnet to attract visitors by the thousands year after year.

Lake Wales is not for those who seek the hurly burly of entertainment and excitement that can be found in profusion in many parts of Florida—it is rather for those who would snatch a little while for quiet restfulness amid scenes of entrancing beauty and inspiration.

The past three years have served to greatly accentuate the attractiveness of the grounds surrounding Bok tower, which was fully described in one of a previous series of articles.

This tower and sanctuary surroundings, it will be recalled, was the gift of the late Edward W. Bok, for many years editor of the Ladies Home Journal, and holds high place among the most beautiful structures of its kind in the world.

If but two things were suggested as essential places to be visited during a first trip to Florida they would be the Bok tower and a trip on one of the glass bottom boats at Silver Springs, near Ocala.

Continuing as director at the tower and sanctuary we find Major H. M. Nornabell, long a personal friend of Edward Bok and much interested in the continuous program of landscaping and beautification that has been provided for in the endowment fund.

Also at the carillon keyboard for the several noonday recitals each week, and for the full moon recital which we are again privileged to attend, is Anton Brees, who—his friends will be interested in knowing — was married about three years ago and now has two fine sons.

HAPPENING into Lake Wales for the annual Seminole Indian Festival at Mountain Lake Sanctuary was a lucky break, as this is made an occasion of rather unusual importance among the few hundred remaining descendants of the former large Seminole tribes of Florida — Indians who never surrendered to white invaders and whose tribal laws are still respected by the authorities of this state.

Legend has it, that at about this season each year Seminoles gathered on Iron Mountain, "the Place of the Spirit," where Singing Tower now stands, for worship and for their Dance of the Rising Sun.

It is in perpetuation of this tradition that a typical Seminole village is erected each mid-March on the sanctuary grounds and a day given over to honoring these early Americans with a special carillon program, several numbers of which are their own selection.

Descendants of several of the historic Seminole chiefs—Osceola, John Cypress and Tallahassee—were among the 75 Indian guests on this occasion, mostly from the Fort Myers vicinity.

Visitors on the sanctuary grounds for the day numbered close to ten thousand—including Alfred M. Landon, former Kansas governor and 1936 Republican presidential candidate, who was a guest of Roger Babson at his near-by Mountain Lake home.

Mr. and Mrs. Landon have been enjoying a fishing trip and vacation in the vicinity of Duneden.

LAKE WALES has long been popular with Mansfield visitors, at least several of whom have chosen this for permanent residence. It appears to have been the late George W. Schmidt who "pioneered" here almost 20 years ago, later building a four-family apartment where Mrs. Schmidt and daughter, Mrs. Olga Reed, and her 15-year-old son Robert continue to live, Mrs. Reed being a teacher in the Lake Wales high school.

Also here are Mrs. John Logan and her twin daughters, Celia and Delia, who will be remembered by many Mansfield people. Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Dickson have also formed the habit of wintering in Lake Wales—and just can't get along without seeing The News-Journal each day.

ANOTHER of the places of interest in this vicinity is the Shrine Ste. Anne des Lacs, started in 1920 by a small group of French Canadian Catholics who chose this as a place where they could escape the rigors of their northern climate and also establish a suitable sanctuary for their devotions. A considerable community of congenial winter residents has grown up around the shrine, which is coming into increasing popularity among tourists each year.

SOMETIME or other—in a magazine or newspaper article—you are bound to run across a mention of "the round house" at Lake Wales—in fact it seems that Ripley has already made note of it.

Anyhow, we availed ourselves of an opportunity to look through this novelty in the way of a home—and it is just what the name indicates, a ROUND house, bungalow type, with six rooms and bath, the outside circle being 38 feet in diameter, of concrete block construction, with ample space for a commodious living room, two sleeping rooms, utility room and a kitchen in which a Westinghouse electric range looms as a reminder of Mansfield.

An inner circle provides adequate space for the dining room, with a round dining table to complete the circular effect.

Located on Lake Shore boulevard, overlooking the lake, this unique home represents the working out of ideas of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jones, who are well pleased with their new home—although a little surprised at the attention it is attracting.

So far as is known this is the only house of its shape in the country and Mr. and Mrs. Jones are being deluged with requests for copies of the plans.

Construction, it might be mentioned, required considerable experimenting, and the costs went somewhat higher than for similar size in a more conventional design. The roof is of concrete slabs and serves as a roof garden.

* * *

PROGRESSIVE in many ways, Florida has been derelict in the matter of passing a law to license automobile drivers, being now one of only six states that do not have such requirement. Efforts are being made to have the legislature enact such a measure at its next session.

* * *

A chamber of commerce with membership exceeding two hundred, and active Rotary and Kiwanis clubs make Lake Wales typical of the extent to which the community-building spirit permeates even the small Florida cities.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Chow" and "Chowchow."

In the matter of How It Started, nothing surprises us more than our occasional capacity to be surprised.

That Athenian colloquialisms, Roman slang, Malay lingo, Anglo-Saxon wisecracks, Hebrew and Sanscrit rooted syllables should spring freshly from the lips of us moderns does not cause us to even twitch an eyebrow.

Expecting, as we always do, the unexpected, we were nevertheless not quite prepared for the discovery that "chow," which we had long naturally regarded as typical American slang for "food," should turn out to be unadulterated—Chinese!

Not content with taking over chow, we have gone the whole hog and borrowed an addition, chow-chow, which, in Chinese, means "consisting of several kinds mingled together" as, chow-chow sweetmeats (preserved fruits put together) or mixed pickles.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

'You Never Wrae e Bore.'

Over the air I hear two sweet voices raised in song. One is a man's, the other a woman's. . . . They sing a song about delightful experience that has been theirs, about precious memories that can never be lost. . . . Once they were deeply in love, once they thought their love would last forever. But something has happened, and they are saying goodby. She's going her way and he is going his. Not in anger, not in bitterness, not even in self-pity, but each accepting the fact that what was once so dear to them is theirs no more. So they are parting—and in the parting song they thank each other for those dear memories.

I forget most of the words of that song. I cannot carry the tune, either. But I remember that somewhere he says to her and she to him, "You may have been a headache, but you never were a bore."

I like those words. To me they are just about right. They are a fair compliment, a beautiful recommendation. . . A wife says to a man: "You hurt me. You caused me many a worry. You didn't live up to all my dreams of you. You lost your temper and left me behind. You are "spoiled." Sometimes you neglected me. Once or twice you hurt my pride. . . . But I'll say this about you: You caused me many a headache, but you never were a bore. I never knew just what you were going to do, what you were going to say. You kept me alert and young and life with you was never dull."

And a man says that to his wife: "There were times when I hated you, times when I wished I'd never seen you, wished I'd never see you again. There were moments when you drove me crazy. You had a sharp tongue and sometimes you used it on me. You weren't always kind. You have the pride of Lucifer, and you've been selfish. But thank you for this: You've given me many a headache, but never a moment of boredom."

There's a compliment for you. . . In this age we are afraid of boredom. Perhaps we fear it too much and sometimes we mistake drudgery for boredom, forgetting that out of seemingly endless drudgery may rise precious achievement, out of the drudgery of a Paderewski's practicing may come the glory of his perfect music. . . . But we are essentially right when we fear empty boredom. It is living death, it is death in life, joyless and meaningless existence, with no fun in craftsmanship, no lift in recreation.

ASKS DELAY IN SENTENCE FOR STOCK BROKER

SEC Seeks to Question Whitney In Investigation of Wall Street Crash.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The Securities and Exchange commission today asked New York authorities to delay sentence of Richard Whitney to permit the SEC to examine him in their investigation of his brokerage crash.

Chairman William O. Douglas of the SEC telegraphed Assistant Attorney General Ambrose V McCal of New York and District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York county requesting the delay in sentencing.

It was pointed out that the SEC inquiry had not been completed and that it would be desirable if Whitney could be kept available for examination by the SEC for two weeks beyond March 28—the date now set for his sentencing under two indictments to which he pleaded guilty.

Sends Message.

"I understand that Richard Whitney comes up for sentence March 28 on plea of guilty to an indictment obtained by your office," Douglas wired. "As I have previously told you this commission has been conducting an investigation of all phases of the circumstances which resulted in the insolvency of Richard Whitney and company and the indictments of Richard Whitney.

"This investigation has not as yet been completed. Some private hearings have been held but many phases of the case which are peculiarly our concern have not as yet been made a matter of record

"It would be desirable from our point of view if Richard Whitney could be kept available for examination by us for a period of two weeks beyond March 28.

"Accordingly, we would appreciate it if you would transmit these facs to the court to see if imposition of sentence could be postponed until April 11"

A Farmer's Diary

March 21.

"Night's candles are burned out,
and jocund day
Stands tiptoe on the misty mountain top."

The first day of spring—and wat a perfect day! The sun rose large and red. I felt the movement of the waking earth. The new-born flowers on the lawn began to move their fragile petals outward. The grass, bathed in gorgeous drops of dew, reflected ten thousand suns in upland fields and meadows.

Trees and shrubs stood motionless as if in worship The fragrance of the earth was almost visible as the mists rose in the presence of sunlight. The sky was clear. The stars had gone to rest. Not even the morning star was visible. All this miracle of change was wrought in perfect silence.

The bluebird flew in undulating path, with the clear blue of the sky upon his back. A flicker drummed his call against a hollow tree and began his laughing notes before he left the spot. The bird chorus began to pour fourth their song to greet the rising sun

I felt small and of little worth as I stood, a wee portion of this mighty picture. Yet I felt my own being awake and thirst, impatient to become a part of all I saw.

Get at the Cause of Constipation!

You know that constipation often gives you that dopey, sunken, bogged down feeling. Why not get at the cause and fix it?

If you eat what most people do—things like bread, meat and potatoes—the chances are all that's the matter with you is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean what you may think. It's a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines that aids elimination.

If this is your trouble, what you need is a dish of crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need, plus Nature's intestinal tonic vitamin B_1, and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if the old world doesn't look a lot brighter! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

GETS WARNING

Mother of 5 Faces Workhouse If She Neglects Children.

A 30-year-old mother of five children was placed on probation for two years when she pleaded guilty in probate court yesterday to abandoning her children, but Judge C J. Anderson warned her that violation of the probation rules would bring a six-months' workhouse term.

The mother, Mrs. Dorothy Livesay, 30, of R. D. 6, Mansfield, was arraigned on charges filed by her husband, Willis Livesay, who said she left their children alone at nights and failed to give them proper care

Her workhouse sentence, imposed by Judge Anderson, was suspended when she promised to return to her family.

SENT TO O. S. R.

Mansfielder Gets Term For Violation of Probation.

Sam Williams, 29, of 55 Grace street, was sentenced to one to 15 years in the Mansfield reformatory yesterday by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston when he pleaded guilty to violation of his probation in an attempt to rob the Miller brothers' cafe at 151 Orange street.

Williams was arrested by police after they found the glass broken in the front door of the Miller establishment early Saturday. He had been on probation since last September when he pleaded guilty before Judge Huston to an indictment for attempted breaking and entering

Police also were investigating a robbery at the S. and M. club, 167 North Main street, where it was reported $8 in cash was taken from a cash drawer after a rear window in the establishment was forced open. The burglar left by a rear door, police said.

Sir Patrick H tings, plaintiff's counsel, refused to read the "beastly publication" in court but said it was "one of the horriblest libels one can imagine about a child nine years of age."

The libel action was brought against the author of the article, Graham Greene, the proprietors of the journal, the publisher and the printer.

STUDIES RELIEF

Council Takes Up Bond Issue, WPA Projects Tonight.

With action on a proposed bond issue to finance the relief burden deferred last Friday, until the cost of a special election could be definitely determined, city council meets in special session tonight for further study of the problem.

Also to be acted upon will be legislation approving the relief administration set-up—creating the positions at headquarters and fixing the salaries of the staff.

Approval also will be sought on three measures designed to provide for additional WPA work in the city. These will include an appropriation of $10,000 for extensions in the water distribution system, the creation of the position of sidewalk inspector, release of a $33,000 sidewalk program and an appropriation of $400 to supplement the $1,100 set-up for the widening of Glessner avenue at the hospital.

20 AGENCIES SHARE IN $284,000 RENEWAL OF SCHOOL INSURANCE

Insurance policies totaling $284,000 on Mansfield school buildings and equipment were renewed last night by the board of education, with 20 agencies participating in the renewals.

Companies with home offices in Mansfield, including the Lumbermens Mutual, Mansfield Mutual, Lincoln Mutual Indemnity and Richland Mutual, were awarded the bulk of the policies.

The board wrestled for nearly two hours with the problem of distributing a $6,574 reduction between the 20 companies, and finally agreed to divide the cut between the six which have profited most by increases granted by the board in recent years.

The reduction was the difference between a drop of $23 174 in the estimated valuation of buildings since last year and an increase of $16,600 in the value of contents of the buildings.

Total insurance carried by the board on the school property is now $1,352,326, Dr John H Bristor, board clerk, said The insurance is distributed among 37 companies with representatives in Mansfield Premiums this year will total $3 000

On the recommendation of J B Moke, superintendent of buildings, the board employed Leslie H Edgerton, 7 Vale avenue, as assistant janitor with fireman's license at John Simpson Junior high school. Edgerton, who has been serving at the school since December under a temporary appointment, ranked third in a recent civil service examination for the post.

The board authorized Moke to investigate the savings that would result from the installation of two transformers at $500 each at the John Simpson building. Moke said the transformers, one for the building's power supply and the other for lights, probably would save $500 a year in current costs

Permission was granted by the board for the use of a room at Senior high school one night a week for free art classes for adults. The classes, under the direction of Miss Marjorie Campbell, art instructor at the school, already had been started, but students were refused entrance to the building last week by a janitor because there had been no action by the board of education granting permission to use the art room in the building. Supt. W. L. Miller presented the request to the board and recommended that Miss Campbell be permitted to continue her classes.

URGE INCOME TAX FOR RELIEF

Cuyahoga Legislators Also Suggest Lottery License as Revenue Source.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—State representatives from Cuyahoga county would impose a state income tax, legalize and license wagering and preallocate part of the gasoline tax to raise additional relief funds.

The county's house delegation met yesterday with Mayor Harold H Burton's citizens' relief committee to discuss what the mayor terms an impending municipal relief crisis.

Rep Lody Huml said he would present to the legislature, if it should be called into special session, a five-point program for providing relief funds.

Se said it would include: a state personal income tax; increase of the tax on 3.2 per cent beer from ¼ to ½ cent, increase of the tax on theater admissions by 10 per cent, increase of the intangible tax on a graduated scale, and allocation to relief of the excess in gasoline tax collections this year over 1937.

Rep Patrick Monahan told the committee he would press for action on his proposal to license lotteries and race wagering Monahan estimated his plan would raise more than $4,000,000 annually for poor relief.

University Women Begin Drive For Scholarship Fund

The campaign of the Mansfield branch of American University Women to raise funds for their scholarship fund was under way today as members sold tickets for their benefit show, "Of Human Hearts," which will be presented at the Madison theater the last three days of the week.

A percentage of the money raised by tickets sold in advance of the show will go toward the establishment of a $5,000 scholarship fund.

The picture "Of Human Hearts" has been acclaimed as one of the best "human interest" film dramas in several years It was made from Honore Morrow's story "Benefits Forgot"

The locale is a small backwoods Ohio river town, just prior to the Civil war; the theme is one of a single family that moves forward with a stirring and heart warm-circuit rider, his wife and their son. The mother sacrifices everything she possesses for her son's education in medicine, and at the height of his brilliant career he has forgotten her. It is Abraham Lincoln himself who brings them together and shames the boy for "benefits forgot."

Tickets for the picture are on sale at Tawse's pharmacy, the Book Shop, West Third street, and at the Chamber of Commerce.
